TO THE EDITOR

To The Editor:

This letter to Sup. Branson is self explanatory.

Dear Mr. Branson:

On May 11, 1971 when you made the motion and cast the deciding vote favoring the expanded use and operations of the Carmel Valley airstrip, you followed the 3-2 decision with a verbal admonition to the owner and or operators of the airstrip that they should, in the best interest of safety for the school children enclose the airstrip with a "Child Proof" fence. You "hoped" this would be done at once, the implied alternative being legislation to compel landing fields in the county to comply with this safety regulations.

Two months have elapsed and there is no sign of a fence. Children still wander on and across the landing strip. The more than one thousand of your constituents who signed the petition for Peace and Quiet are still concerned for the safety of the children as planes continue to land and take off in the proximity of the school playground and the Community Center, homes and the blind (to Ford Rd) ending of the runway.

Must there be a serious accident or possibly a fatality before action is taken to safeguard the public? Please advise what progress is being made in this regard.

Sincerely,
I.C. HOWARD
Committee for Peace & Quiet

To the Editor:

Should Be County Service Area

The petition handed out at last Tuesday, July 6, 1971 meeting of the C.V.P.O.A. committee for fire protection is the poorest document I have ever seen. The persons who drew it up did not know the first rules of proper procedure.

First of all the petition should be confined to property owners only because they are the ones who will have to pay for it. The way it is drawn up, any visitor or renter in any part of Carmel Valley could sign it. It should be limited to the property owner in the Mid-Carmel Valley only.

Next the wording "Special Area" means nothing. In drawing up a petition, you should ask for a definite and specific thing such as "A County service area for fire protection!" With the vague and incorrect wording in the petition at present it could be interpreted in a number of ways.

Thirdly, the East and West boundaries should be described in more detail such as "From the Rancho San Carlos Road on the west and to the west boundary of the Rancho Los Laureles on the east."

If these committee members are sincere they had better draw up the document correctly or the project will not get off the ground.

I would not sign this petition and I would not ask any of my friends or neighbors to sign it.

To the Editor:

Divorce has caused emotional strain and a financial burden to many people when they are poorly prepared to deal with either. The new California Family Law Act greatly reduces these hardships by eliminating fault finding as a basis for marriage dissolution and by providing for equitable division of community property. In some cases it may be feasible for an individual to act as his own attorney and thus save the cost of attorney fees. Under the new California Family Law Act the only grounds for marriage dissolution are: (1) irreconcilable differences that have caused the irremediable breakdown of the marriage, and (2) incurable insanity.

Professional marriage counseling is available at no cost in counties having a Conciliation Court. This counseling is available either before or after dissolution proceedings have begun. It is necessary to file a Petition for Conciliation with the Superior Court Clerk.

To act as your own attorney in a marriage dissolution start by asking the Superior Court Clerk for the Dissolution Packet. Then locate the nearest law library for reference material. The new California Family Law Act and appropriate court procedures can be found in Deerings Civil Code 4500 to 5000 and Rules of Court 1201 to 1290 (in the 1971 Pocket Supplements) and other references that may be available. The court clerk can not help you in any way or give advice. You will be on your own.

I hope concerned people in other states will work for similar improvements in divorce legislation.

Sincerely,
JOHN PATTON

Several churches on the Monterey Peninsula are cooperating in a drive to collect clean, useable clothing (no shoes) and blankets for 17,000,000 refugees in all parts of the world.

Mrs. L.S. Fletcher of Carmel Valley Manor is chairman of Church Women - United of the Monterey Peninsula of the Church World Service, which is packing and shipping clothing. Collection depots are located at the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel, the First Presbyterian Church in Monterey and St. Mary's by the Sea Episcopal Church in Pacific Grove.

Children's clothing, infant's wear and blankets are the items most requested where churches are working in Africa, Asia, the Middle East and Latin America. Next in demand are men's pants, shirts, jackets, work clothes and underwear. These should be lightweight as the most urgent need is in warmer climates. Women's serviceable and washable dresses, skirts, blouses and lightweight jackets are also useful.

Donations should be left at one of the churches no later than Friday, August 6. They will be collected the following Monday and taken to the Church World Service depot in Modesto.

Palo Alto-Savings net up 30%

The figures reflect the recent merger of Carmel Savings into Palo Alto-Salinas Savings, combining the 1970 six-month statements of the two companies for comparative purposes.

A $45,103,400 increase in savings was reported, eleven times greater than the $4,385,558 figure for the first six months of 1970. Loan production volume for the period reached an all time high of $80,300,000, two and one-third times the 1970 January to July production.

In making the announcement, Gryp noted that the assets of the company had now crossed the half-billion dollar mark ($503,341,250) making it one of California's ten largest associations. Opening of the firm's newest branch location in the Montclair district of Oakland is anticipated with the next few weeks.

A 30 percent increase in net earnings for the first six months of 1971 over the comparable period last year was announced Tuesday by Firmin A. Gryp, president of Palo Alto-Salinas Savings and Loan Association. Earnings through June 30, 1971 topped $2,706,250, or $1.15 per share, compared to $2,069,498, or $0.88 per share for the period last year.

Planning commission subcommittee hears from Odello opponents

Evans 'not impressed' with OLAF's $300,000

At a closed meeting from which reporters were barred, a County Planning Commission subcommittee heard testimony Monday afternoon from several persons opposed to a high-density development on the Odello Ranch.

This was the latest in a series of quiet meetings held by the three-member subcommittee, composed of Dr. Edward Marcucci, Keith Evans and Leon Stutzman, and persons connected with the Odello development.

Previously the group has met in private with brothers Bruno and Emilio Odello to go over various aspects of the proposal that will be presented to the full Planning Commission on July 28 at 1:30 p.m.

The new plan will be submitted in connection with the pending application for rezoning on the 292-acre ranch. As described by Planning Director Ed De Mars on Monday, it is basically the same development drawn up earlier by architects Sasaki-Walker for City Reconstruction Co. of Los Angeles, which has since withdrawn as the developer.

However, proposed density has been reduced from 1844 units to 1644. The ocean-front hotel has been cut back from 600 to 450 units, and moved some 200 yards back from the lagoon and bird sanctuary at the western edge of the property. In addition, 50 residential units have been dropped from the western half of the property.

On the easternportion of the property, overall density remains the same as in the original Sasaki-Walker plan, although there are some suggested changes in placement.

Backing up the revised development plans will be a supplementary engineering report by the Tudor Engineering Co. of San Francisco. This report, prepared at the request of George Bestor and Associates, the Monterey engineers for the project, was given to the planning staff in early June.

According to Carl Hooper of George Bestor, the Tudor study has only minor differences "of a half-foot here and a half-foot there" with the Bestor report, and agrees with the Bestor conclusions that dikes proposed for the development would be adequate for "a hundred year flood, with a small margin of safety above that."

At Monday's meeting, commissioner Evans, of Carmel, told the invited audience he is "not impressed" with the $300,000 raised so far by OLAF, and considers that a small amount coming from a wealthy community.

Evans also said that he had received as many calls from people supporting a "reasonable" development on the Odello property as from those opposed to development. "Maybe I move in the wrong social circles," he added. Many persons, he said, are concerned that the property would become a haven for hippies if put into open space.

His comments came in response to a question asking for the personal opinions of the commissioners on the project. Marcucci and Stutzman did not reply, saying they were present only to gather information and not to comment upon it.

Concern about future flooding was raised several times, but there was no indication that the commission is considering applying flood plain zoning to the property. The group present was told that the Army Corps of Engineers flood plain study of the Carmel River, which is now underway, will not have a bearing on the commission's decision.

Among the organizations receiving a personal invitation to Monday's session were the Carmel Area Coalition, OLAF, the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, the Carmel Meadows Property Owners Association and the League of Women Voters. Representing the city of Carmel were Eben Whittlesey and Bernard Anderson. There were also a few individuals present not representing any specific group.

Meanwhile, Supervisor Willard Branson released the following statement last week on his continuing efforts to bring OLAF and the Odellos together:

"Supervisor Branson announced today (Friday, July 9) that there was a meeting with the Odello Brothers, Fred Farr, Francis Lloyd and Mayor Laiolo. The discussion during the meeting concerned the value of the land in question, also possible funding sources.

"A report of the OLAF funds was given. Further discussion concerning the question of acquisition of all or a portion of the Odello Ranch was pursued and this subject was left open for further consideration.

"Negotiations are progressing with the next meeting set for July 22."

Property Owners group reiterates conservative stand on developments

Directors of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association last week took varied action on five development proposals pending for Carmel Valley.

Acting after a general membership meeting which focused on problems of fire insurance, the board took these positions:

On the Odello Development, which comes up before the Planning Commission for another hearing on July 28, the CVPOA endorsed the recommendations of the Lower Valley Advisory Committee.

The advisory committee's report, submitted to the Planning Commission three months ago, focused on the proposed Sasaki Walker development plan. Among its recommendations were that the resort density be cut in half, from 900 to 450 units; that the highest building be no more than 25 feet above mean sea level; that there be strict design control with greater variety than shown in initial drawings; that any artificial lakes and channels be at least six feet deep to retard growth of algae; and that overall density of development should not exceed the median between the low and high densities suggested for the property in the Three Ranches Plan.

Turning to Dr. Joseph Noto's new proposal for a mobile home park on his Schulte Road property, the board repeated its position as "unalterably opposed to a subdivision of mobile homes or other dwellings" in a density greater than the existing zoning of one unit per acre."

Dr. Noto, rebuffed by the Planning Commission and Board of Supervisors for a 75 unit mobile home park, has submitted a new application for 68 mobile homes on his 16 acres. The new application will be heard by the Planning Commission on August 11.

The CVPOA board next voted its support of the Planning Commission's recent ruling that would limit Riverside Park to 10 trailer sites and 10 tent sites for overnight campers.

Owner Jesse West, who had requested approval for 47 sites, is appealing that decision to the Board of Supervisors at 10:30 a.m. next Tuesday.

Although the general development plan for the Valley Ford commercial complex has already been approved by the Board of Supervisors, the CVPOA directors voted to ask developer Robert Bolman to give "serious consideration" to the plan.

In particular, directors expressed concern about the proposed 596-seat twin movie theater, which is scheduled to become the first stage of development, and are asking Bolman and theater lessee Tom Graff to reduce it to something "substantially smaller" to alleviate traffic and parking pressures.

Directors also agreed that there seems to be a "lack of public interest" in having any theater at all built on the property, located at the intersection of Ford Road and Carmel Valley Road.

And finally, the board approved a motion asking the Planning Commission to continue the rezoning application of Roy Kaminske, which is scheduled for a hearing on July 28. Kaminske is asking rezoning of his 25 acres, adjoining the River Ranch on Carmel Valley Road, from its present five acre minimum to one acre building sites.

Swim Jamboree Friday

The first session of swimming lessons at the Carmel Valley Community Pool will wind up Friday with the traditional Swim Jamboree.

Parents and friends are invited at 10 a.m. to watch classes demonstrate and compete in the skills they have learned. First, second and third place ribbons will be distributed.

In addition to swimming class events, there will be diving, life saving and synchronized swimming demonstrations.

The second four-week session of swimming lessons will begin next Monday. Registration for these classes will take place at the pool after the Jamboree for those who have not already signed up. If there is room, students who have taken the first session may continue on through the second session by signing up at the pool office.

Supervisors turn down pay raise by 3-2 vote

By a 3 to 2 vote, Monterey County supervisors rejected Tuesday a recommendation that their salaries be increased from $800 to $1000 a month.

Supervisor Willard Branson of Carmel Valley, who had decided before the board meeting to vote against the proposed salary increase, was joined by supervisors Warren Church and Ellis Tavernetti in killing the proposal.

Board chairman Arthur Atteridge and Supervisor Loren Smith of Seaside voted for the increase on the grounds that the salaries of Monterey County supervisors are substantially lower than those received by supervisors in other counties of similar size.

The salary increase was recommended by a blue ribbon committee headed by Superior Court Judge Ralph Drummond. The committee said the increase was jusitifed because the job of supervisor, theoretically a part-time position, is in fact more than a normal full-time job. All supervisors have said they work more than 40 hours a week to fulfill their elected responsibilities.

In voting against the pay raise, Branson read this statement he had prepared in advance of the meeting:

"First I wish to thank the committee for its valuable time spent in studying the recommendations for supervisors' salaries.

"Anyone closely observing the activities well knows that the suggested salary increase is not too great.

"There is a much more important and far-reaching principle involved, however. That is the principle of leadership in the fight against inflation and loading of the property tax.

"Both federal and state legislators decry the so-called 'cost of government' but have shown me no evidence that they are willing to start the fight against it at the level of their own purse strings. We must take no less a sharp look at our willingness to sacrifice income—regardless of our work load.

"The working man is forced to go on strike for more wages with which to fight inflation; the retired citizens must cut down on their standard of living, and we must show leadership by not asking for an increase no matter how well deserved.

"And finally, I sought this job of supervisor—and while it is increasing in responsibility and work, so does it increase as a privilege to contribute to the cause of my fellow man. I will settle for the satisfaction received from the knowledge that each year my contribution to our wonderful society is greater."

Budget cuts won't affect Carmel schools

"Nope we wouldn't lose any money," Carmel Unified School District Business Manager Walter Hinton said of education cuts in the state budget made by Gov. Reagan.

"The reason being, that we wouldn't get any of those goodies anyway" being a basic aid school district which receives only $125 per student per school year.

"You can't consider something you didn't have as a loss," Hinton said.

CHARLIE AND FRAN GANSEL

FRAN AND CHARLIE GANSEL had been led to believe that they were going to the Community Center to view an art exhibit and instead found 70 of their friends waiting to wish them a happy silver wedding anniversary.

The surprise had been planned by their daughter, Susanne who was assisted at the champagne reception by Mrs. Gary Kitt. A guest book containing mementos of the Gansels' wedding 25 years ago in Pacific Grove was carried by Mrs. Roy Tilly. The tables were decorated with a huge cake and red American beauty roses. Among their many gifts was a money tree, an exquisite silver knife, and champagne glasses etched with the names of the celebrants.

Among the invited guests - many of whom had attended their wedding - were Fran's brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Castanos, Mr. and Mrs. Don Laird, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Phillips and Valerie, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kampe, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Bolgard, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Tedrow and Linda, Mr. and Mrs. Richard McKenzie, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Kitt and Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Galey, Mr. and Mrs. Art Fosso, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tilly, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Black, Mrs. Loretta Kline, Mrs. Martha Spaid, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Diaz, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Todd, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Busick, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Maury Nessel, Sal Ocampo, George Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Goold, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Van Hagen, Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Gayman, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bordonaro.

With the party over, the Gansels learned why their daughter, Susanne, had not found time to pack for her trip to Europe which had been planned for many months. Two days later . . . after some frantic packing found her on a plane bound for Amsterdam. Susanne, the attendance secretary at Carmel High School, plans to tour as many countries as possible in six weeks with special reservations and tickets awaiting her in England, a Christmas gift from her cousins.

15 Carmel Valle enter Gravity G

By PAT GRIFFITH

Some of the most frantic automobile activity this side of a Detroit assembly line is underway in Carmel Valley this week.

In garages and on backyard patios, 15 budding car enthusiasts are tightening bolts and applying paint on the racers they will enter in the Monterey Peninsula's first Soap Box Derby, the World's Gravity Grand Prix, on July 25.

Fourteen of the Carmel Valley hopefuls who will vie at Laguna Seca Raceway on Sunday, July 25, are boys 11 through 15 years old.

But the Valley's 15th entry is a lissome brunette with clear green eyes who has outgrown her interest in making Barbie doll furniture and is turning to auto mechanics instead.

Linda Tedrow of Paso Hondo Road will be hard to beat from any angle.

"I really would like to win, although if I don't it won't be a really big thing," the 13-year-old says with s smile. Then her jaw clenches and she adds: "But oh, I want to show those boys that a girl is able to do something like this, too."

Linda, who is being sponsored by the Carmel Valley Lionettes, hopes to be a model one day. But she isn't relying on appearance to get her into the winner's spot.

For the past month and a half she has worked with meticulous care under the direction of her father, Herman Tedrow, a carpenter.

"He has insisted that I do everything just right," she says. "That way, if I don't win this year, I should be able to use the same car next year if I want to enter again. And I probably will."

The winner of the big race July 25 will receive a $500 savingsbond from Chevrolet and the opportunity to compete in the national Soap Box Derby finals at Akron, Ohio, for $30,000 in scholarships.

Second and third place finishers will receive trophies, and all entrants will be given a trophy from the Carmel Valley Cahmber of Commerce.

QUEEN, TOO

For young ladies 11 through 15, who would like to participate but who aren't quite up to building their own racing cars, there is a queen contest underway.

Interested girls may register at any branch of the United California Bank, where she will be given Derby booster buttons to sell. The girl who sells the most buttons will be named queen at a pre-inspection meeting at Roller Chevrolet next Tuesday.

The Derby queen will recieve a $25 savings bond from the Carmel Valley Lions Club, a three-speed record player, clothes and shoes. The first two runners up will receive pants suits.

Racing festivities will start July 24 in Monterey, with a 10 a.m. parade of all contestants down Alvarado Street. Afterwards, contestants and cars will go to Laguna Seca for practice runs and final inspections.

The Sunday program will start with a parade at the raceway at 11 a.m. After a break for lunch, racing will start on a double elimination basis, which means a car must lose twice before it is out of the race.

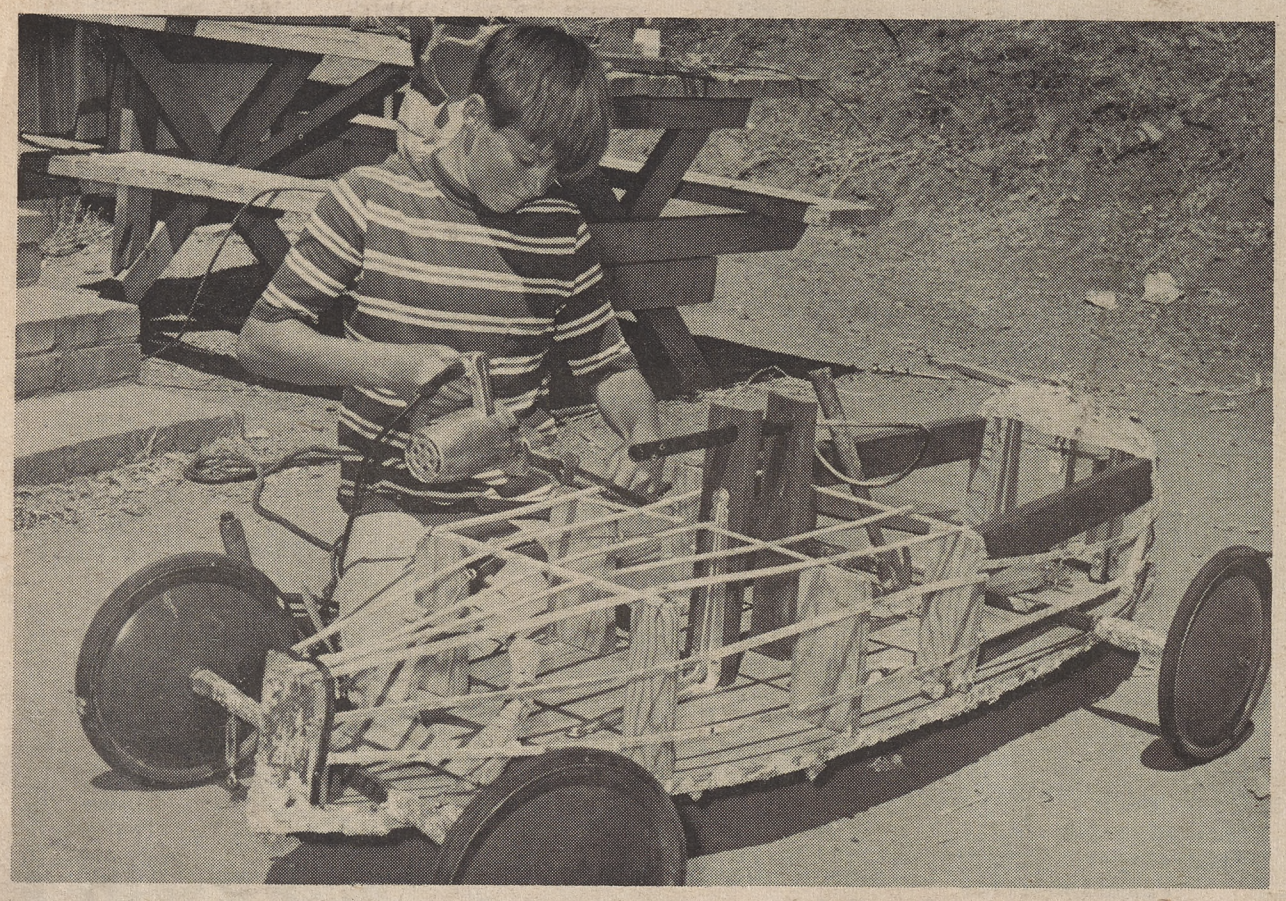
Two drivers will race at one time down the hill from the top of Turn 1 at Laguna Seca to the old start-finish line. Pairs of drivers will continue to race until half the entrants have won.

Then everyone who lost on the first try will be given a second chance, racing two-by-two on an elimination basis until only one driver is left. He, or she, will then join the first-round winners, who will go through the same process of elimination until the final winner is determined.

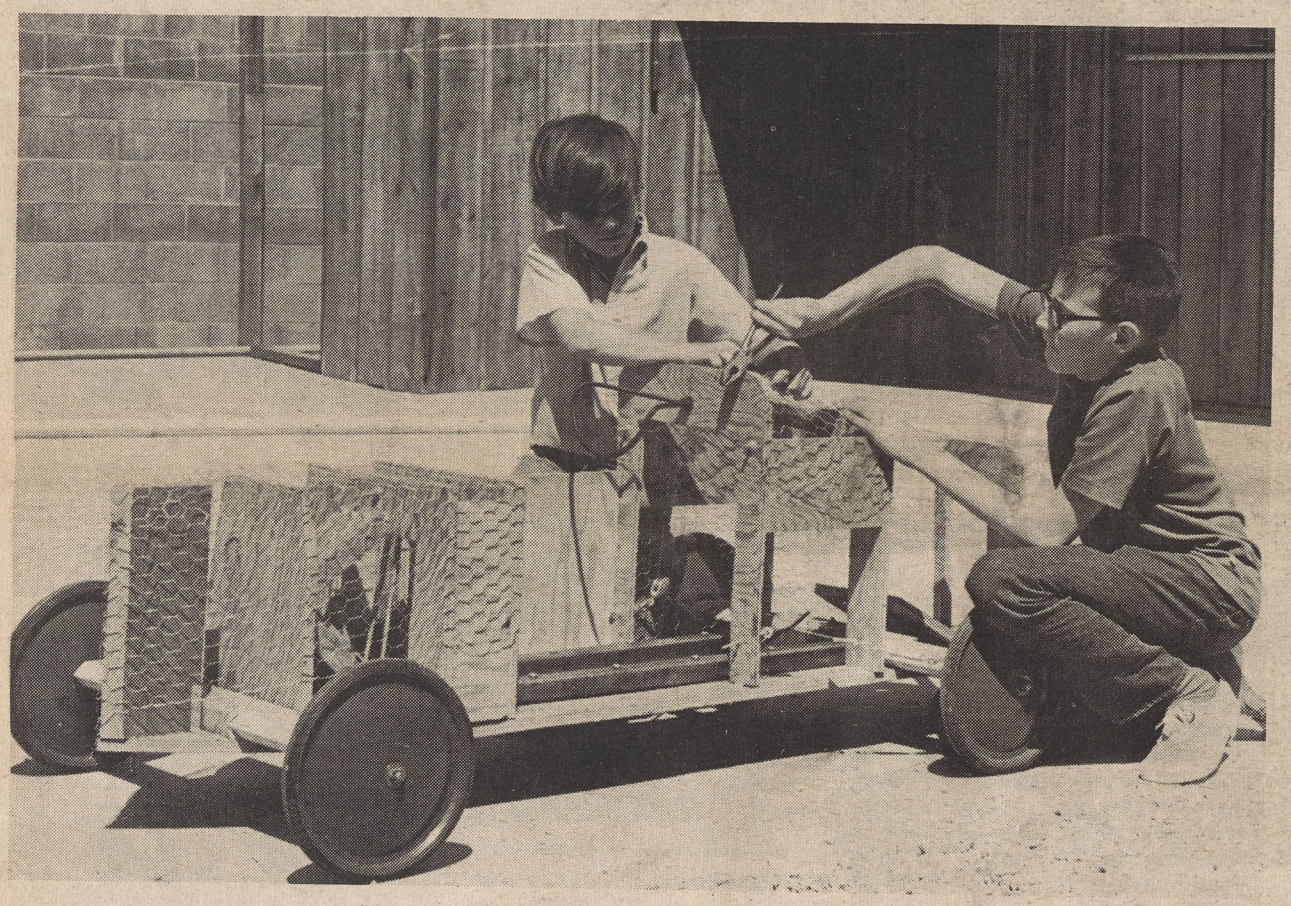
The Soap Box Derby is sponsored by the Carmel Valley Lions Club, with the Monterey Sheriff's Department as co-sponsors. Roller Chevrolet is the dealer sponsor, and the Corvette Club of the Monterey Peninsula is sponsoring the Saturday parade in Monterey.

Carmel Valley Entries for the 1971 Soap Box Derby Laguna Seca Raceway, Sunday, July 25

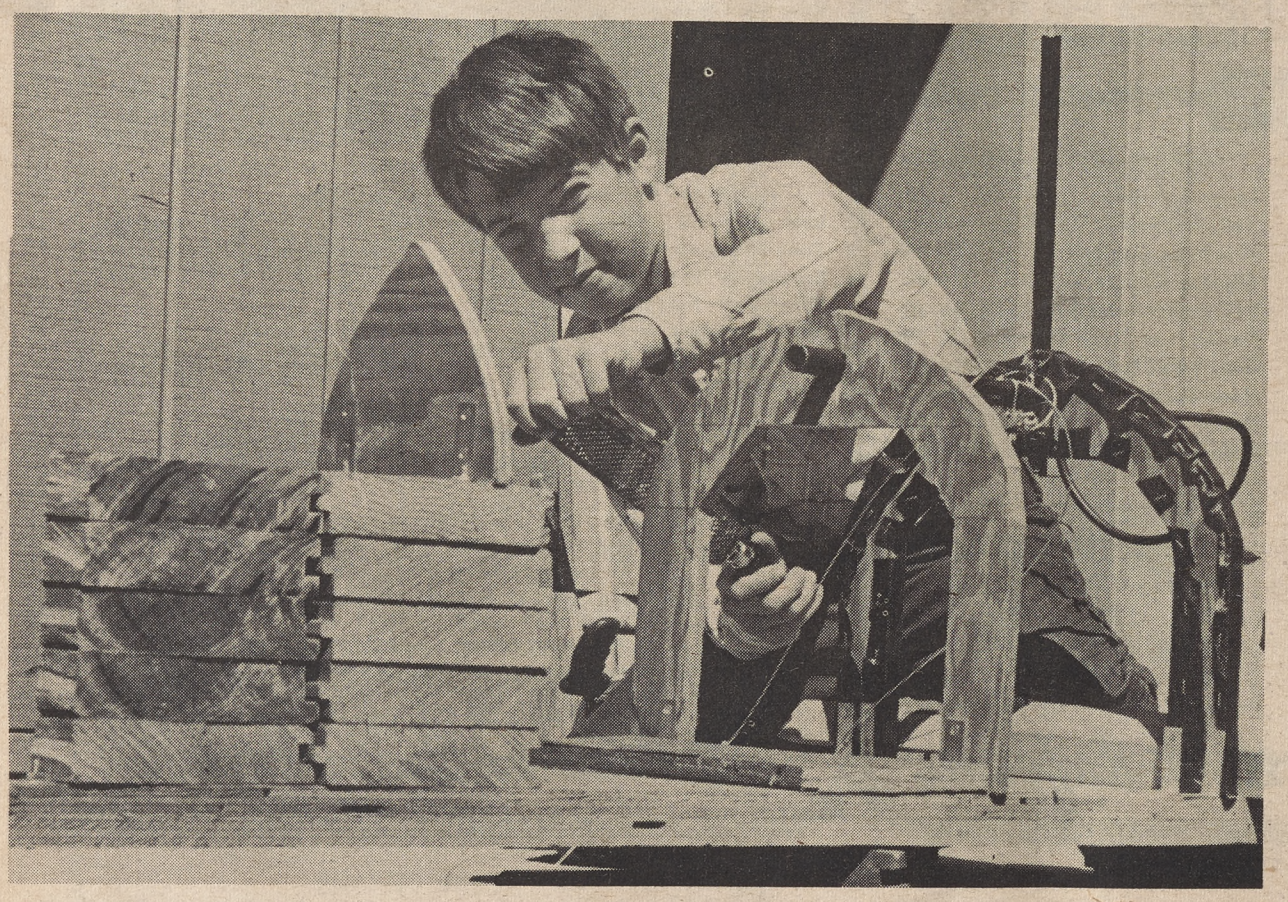
Car Number	Name	Address
4	Pat Kitt	19 Via Contenta
5	Kent Swanson	Los Tulares
8	Mike Busick	River Road
11	Bradley Klemek	Holman Road
17	Carl Black	76 Panetta Road
18	Ronald Nielsen	381 W. Carmel Valley Rd.
19	Timothy Nielsen	381 W. Carmel Valley Rd.
22	Kevin Klein	47 Sage Road
23	Gary Eldridge	69 Panetta Road
25	Mike Hartman	River Road
29	Philip Wright	9 River Road
37	David Reins	Robinson Cyn. Road
38	Bruce Alexander	Hitchcock Canyon
41	Linda Tedrow	79 Paso Hondo
48	Matthew Overpeck	Deer Meadow Place



BRUCE ALEXANDER, who lives way, way up Hitchcock Canyon, thought he had his car completed two weeks ago. Then he went to the Soap Box Derby at Santa Cruz a week ago, got some new ideas, and rushed home to dismantle his entry and start all over again.



PAT KITT USES PLIERS to stretch chicken wire across the frame of his car, which will then be covered with canvas and painted blue and white. Kevin Klein, left, who lives on Sage Road, has a car on his own that he hopes will outdistance Pat on the Laguna Seca track. Pat's father is Gary Kitt, the Carmel Valley Lion who is in charge of the World's Gravity Grand Prix race on July 25.



THE PAINSTAKING LABOR that goes into building a Soap Box Derby car is evident in this closeup of Kent Swanson's racer, which will be Number 5 at Laguna Seca. Each boy is given a package containing identical wheels and axle, and beyond that is limited to $35 for all materials, except the final point job.

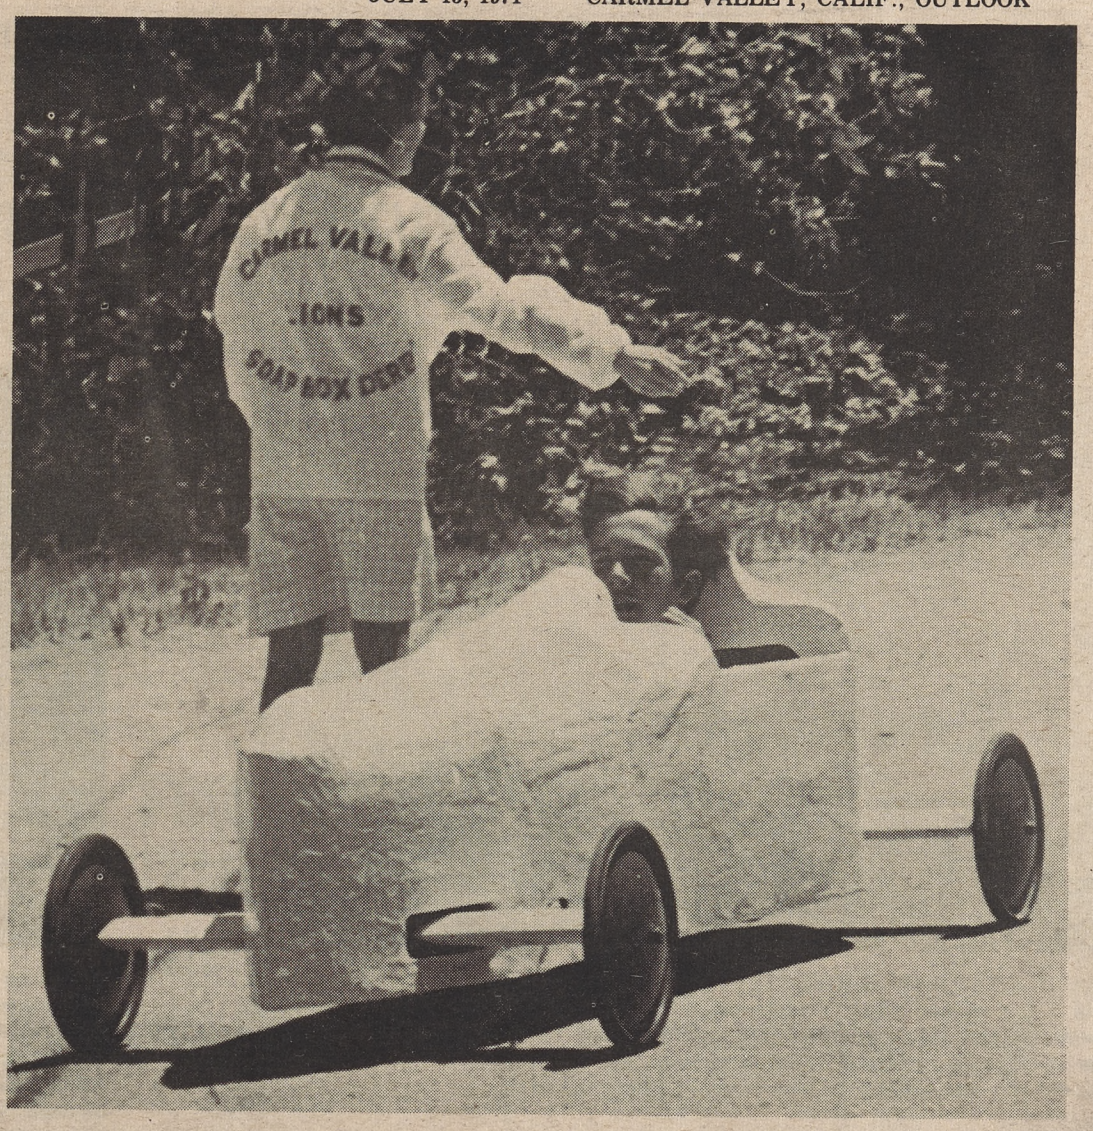
YEARS OF OBSERVING her carpenter-father at work may pay off big for Linda Tedrow of Paso Hondo Road, the only girl daring enough to enter the Soap Box Derby on July 25. Linda plans to paint her fibreboard covered car gold, and will have gold and purple trim in honor of her sponsors, the Carmel Valley Lionettes. She should be easy to spot on the race track—she'll be the driver in hot pants.

Photos by George T.C. Smith



GO! Lionette Rae Black gives the starting signal to son Carl, as he races down Panetta Road in his car with a molded papier mache body. Carl put logs along the hood of his car to give it added weight. Rules forbid the use of metal.

OH FOR THE LIFE OF A test car driver. Ron, left, and Tim Nielsen point their hard-hatted Dalmation down their driveway in a test run for Tim's entry in the 1971 Soap Box Derby. Ron and Tim are the only brothers entered in the race, and both are in the final stages of work on their cars. The difference in the design of their cars is evident in the picture at right.

No frost. No fuss.

New refrigerator-freezers are frost-free, which frees you from the drudgery of defrosting. No more filling and spilling of ice trays, either, with the optional feature of an automatic ice maker. What's more, new models give you more freezer and refrigerator storage in the same floor space. If all this sounds like something you need, see your appliance dealer.

Carmel Valley netman tops Ft. Ord courts

(U.S. Army Photo)

Specialist five Victor Rubackis of Carmel Valley doesn't see a thing unusual about playing a fast game of tennis at age 40. "King Gustav of Sweden was playing at 80," he pointed out. However, the Swedish monarch was not winning championships at the net as the 40 year old courtsman of the U.S. Army Combat Developments Command Experimentation Command at Fort Ord is doing.

The Fort Ord Tennis Champ, a mathematics-statistics assistant for CDCEC's Project Team III, and winner of the Post title three times, goes to Fort Lewis, Wash., where he will participate in the Seniors' Division of the Sixth Army Tennis Matches.

Winning championships is not new to the spry netter. While in the Air Force where he saw prior service, Rubackis attended the University of Denver on a tennis scholarship. He became captain of the Varsity Team which won the championship in their Conference. During this period, he also won the Base Championship at Lowry Air Force Base, Colorado in 1956 and 1957.

Other credits include the Post Championship at Aberdeen Proving Grounds, Maryland, in 1963 and 1964; and, in 1967 and 1968, the Fort Ord Post Championship. Prior to the Post Tournament, he competed in the California Section Championship in San Francisco where he defeated the number one seeded Class B player.

Rubackis played paddle tennis as a child in Lithuania before immigrating to the USA at the age of twenty. "A paddle tennis racket is designed along the lines of a tennis racket," he said, "However the head is made of wood and has tiny holes in it. Also, the handle is half as long and the court is one-third the size of a tennis court."

"I have loved tennis since I was a kid," he added, "And over the years my love for the game has only intensified. My philosophy is that the game must bring a feeling of enjoyment rather than one of competition.

"The game is good for all ages. It is great fun and, like chess, lends itself to intellectual know-how. It is one of the few gentlemanly games left."

Rubackis' wife, Stella, whom he appropriately met on a tennis court, is also a tennis buff. She has founded tennis clubs in Albuquerque, New Mexico and Livermore, California. She is currently working as a tennis instructor at a Lake Tahoe summer camp.

Joe Fischer in charge of Carmel Valley Post Office

Joe Fischer, a veteran of 25 years with the U.S. Post Office in Salinas, was appointed "officer in charge" of the Carmel Valley Post Office Friday.

Fischer assumes the responsibilities, at least for the present, of Postmaster Sam Brandt, who died of cancer early last week.

The appointment was made by the regional office of the U.S. Postal Service in San Francisco. Fischer is applying to the San Francisco office for the position of postmaster and will move from Salinas to Carmel Valley if he is appointed. He was formerly foreman of mails for the day shift in Salinas.

Rites held for John S. Powers

Funeral services were held Tuesday for John S. Power, 82, who died in a Santa Clara convalescent hospital last Saturday after a four-year illness.

Mr. Power, a retired foundry and metal worker, moved to Carmel Valley 10 years ago with his wife, Julia. Their home is on Country Club Way.

A native of St. Paul, Minn., Mr. Power was a member of South Pueblo Lodge 31, F&AM, in Pueblo, Colo., and in 1969 received his 50-year award from the Grand Masonic Lodge of Colorado.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Don Johnson of the Carmel Valley Community Chapel and Monterey Lodge 217, F&AM.

In addition to his widow, Mr. Power is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Robert Devor of Campbell; a son, Arthur J. Power of Denver; two brothers, Charles R. of Port Hueneme and William A. of Pueblo; four grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

The family has requested that memorial contributions be made to the Community Hsopital fund or to Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children in San Francisco.

Musical improvisations at Foundation next week

The Carmel Foundation will present Rolf Forsland at its regular Wednesday afternoon Town House program July 21. He will play from his own compositions which he calls "Improvisations."

While his musical training was grounded in the classics (he studied at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston) and his technical skill evident, Forsland's work has a freshness and a sense of relevancy to the times. He says he is a "keyboard composer", but channelling his emotions, not always adhering to the traditional forms, according to his mood at the piano and the occasion, which makes for lively listening on the part of his audience.

Among his compositions included in the program are: Rhapsody No. 2, Impromptu in C minor, The Awakening, Rhapsody No. 1, The Ballad, East-West, Rhapsody No. 3, Romantic Fantasy and Hymn of Peace.

Forsland is a newcomer to the Monterey Peninsula, and the Foundation welcomes its members to hear this young man in the recital at Town House. As usual, the program begins at 2:30 p.m. and will be followed by tea for all guests.

A GERMAN WALL CLOCK, circa 1880, will be among the items available at the 14th annual Monterey Peninsula Antique Show and Sale at the Exposition Hall of the Monterey County Fairgrounds Friday and Saturdaynfrom noon to 9 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Mrs. R.B. Haskell and daughter Loretta examine the clock in this photo. The event is sponsored by St. Mary's-by-the-Sea Episcopal Church.

KLRB begins voter registration drive

Radio station KLRB (FM) has begun a series of weekly voter registration drives at its Carmel studios, according to KLRB Program Director Bob Barron, "as part of our continuing policy of community involvement."

Voter registration, being conducted in cooperation with the League of Women Voters, will be on Wednesdays from 3 to 6 p.m. at the KLRB studios in Carmel, located on Dolores between Seventh and Eighth.

"We are especially encouraging newly enfranchised 18, 19 and 20 year olds to register to vote, but we welcome potential voters of all ages to come by and register," says Barron.

The station's voter registration drive is being supported by on-the-air announcements, posters, and newspaper publicity.

Safeway promotes two local men

Safeway Stores, Inc. has promoted two local employees as part of a series of management changes recently made by the food firm.

The local men involved are Robert M. Torma, now manager of the Marina Village Shopping Center Safeway Store, and James E. Kelsey, formerly assistant manager of the Carmel Center Safeway store who succeeds Torma as manager of the Mid-Valley Shopping Center Safeway unit.

Torma started his Safeway career as a food clerk in Monterey in 1964. He was promoted to assistant store manager in 1967 and to store manager in 1969.

Torma was born in Ashtabula, Ohio and after completing schooling and service in the U.S. Navy came to the Bay Area. He and his wife, Jeannette, live in Salinas with their two children—Robert and Lynette.

Kelsey joined Safeway as a food clerk in 1960 in Salinas. He was promoted to assistant store manager in 1966 and served in that capacity in Carmel, Seaside, Marina and Salinas.

Kelsey grew up in the Salinas area and attended Hartnell College. He now makes his home in that city with his wife, Everileen.

New ordinance would permit home trailers

A new zoning ordinance which would allow trailers or mobile homes to be used for permanent living quarters if a use permit is secured was approved by the Monterey County Planning Commission yesterday.

Called an "L" District, the ordinance must be passed by the Board of Supervisors before it becomes law.

The new ordinance was adopted after residents of Corral de Tierra convinced the commission to establish a "J" District, which prohibits the use of trailers and mobile homes for permanent residences, for 50 square miles in the Toro Park area.

But in passing the "J" District, several commissioners said they felt that mobile homes were justified under certain conditions in open, rural areas, and would like to see future provision made to permit trailers with a use permit.

The "L" District, which has had some discussion among property owners on the north side of the Grade, could be applied to property in Carmel Valley.

Although all the residentially-zoned property in the Valley is now covered by the "J" District, Planning Director Ed DeMars told the commissioners that any property owner would have the right, by law, to ask for rezoning from "J" to "L" if he so desired.

"But the chances of it being adopted in Carmel Valley are pretty slim," he added.

Under further questioning by Commissioner Vaughn Parsons, DeMars said he doubted that the commission would want to approve a change from "J" to "L" on an individual lot basis, but might consider it when a broader area is involved.

During the hearing on applying the "J" zone to the Toro area, several residents complained that trailers had begun to appear on scenic hillsides, to the detriment of property values and overall scenic beauty.

Without a total ban on trailers, they argued, their area would be in danger of becoming "a second class Carmel Valley."

OTHER MATTERS

Commissioners also took action on two other matters involving Carmel Valley property.

An application by PG&E for a use permit for two years to operate a corporation yard on Pilot Road next to the Wester ballet studio was approved after some discussion.

The use permit allows the utility to have a "mobile office" at the rear of the property, prompting Parsons to complain that "utilities have rights that are denied to private citizens."

The corporation yard will also be equipped with portable toilets, since drainage conditions to not allow use of a septic tank.

The permit was approved by a 3 to 1 vote, with Parsons in opposition.

The commission also voted to continue until August 25 consideration of an application by Arne Kippenes to rezone property at the corner of Esquiline Road and Carmel Valley Road to allow construction of 12 apartments. Part of the property in question is now zoned C-1 (commercial) and part is zoned for multiple residential use.

Supervisors to act on re-districting Tuesday

A redistricting plan which would give Monterey County three coastal supervisors was taken under consideration by the Board of Supervisors at its meeting Tuesday.

The board put off any action on the new plan until next Tuesday at 2 p.m. in order to give all supervisors time to study the proposal.

The plan has the backing of Monterey and other cities on the Monterey Peninsula and the city of Salinas.

Basically, it would mean that Supervisor Willard Branson's fifth district would stay almost intact, except that a portion of Monterey east of the freeway would be shifted unto the fourth district.

Loren Smith, representing the fourth district, would remain in Seaside and pick up additional population from Fort Ord. The third coastal supervisor would be Warren Church of North County, who would give up the area he now represents in north Salinas in exchange for a shift west and a section of Fort Ord.

This would leave the Salinas Valley divided between Board chairman Arthur Atteridge, who would keep most of Salinas and move into the Corral de Tierra-Toro Park areas, and South County supervisor Ellis Tavernetti.

Tavernetti's third district, which is largest in area but smallest in population, would extend into the Alisal area of east Salinas to bring it up to the required 50,000 population for each supervisorial district.

SANDOR SALGO MUSICAL DIRECTOR AND CONDUCTOR

Sandor Salgo called 'A man for all musical seasons'

Since 1956 the distinguished conductor, Sandor Salgo, has been responsible for development of the Carmel Bach Festival to its present level of excellence.

Under his artistic guidance the Festival has attracted some of the top vocalists and instrumentalists proficient in the performance of Baroque music.

Equally at home in the baroque, classical, romantic, and contemporary eras, Salgo has been called "a man for all musical seasons." As Professor of Music at Stanford University, Salgo is Music Director of the Stanford Opera Theatre and Symphony Orchestra. In addition to his University activities he is Music Director and Conductor of the Marin Symphony and Music Director of the "Music at the Vineyards" series at Saratoga, California.

Sandor Salgo is a native of Hungary. He began his conducting career as a pupil of Fritz Busch and George Szell. He has served as guest conductor of several European orchestras, the National Symphony of Mexico, the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, San Francisco Spring Orchestra, the Vancouver Festival and the Royal Philharmonic in London.

Warmth, humanity and drama suffuse his interpretations and the Festival programs attest to his abilities as a programmer and a conductor capable of bringing forth the best his musicians have to give.

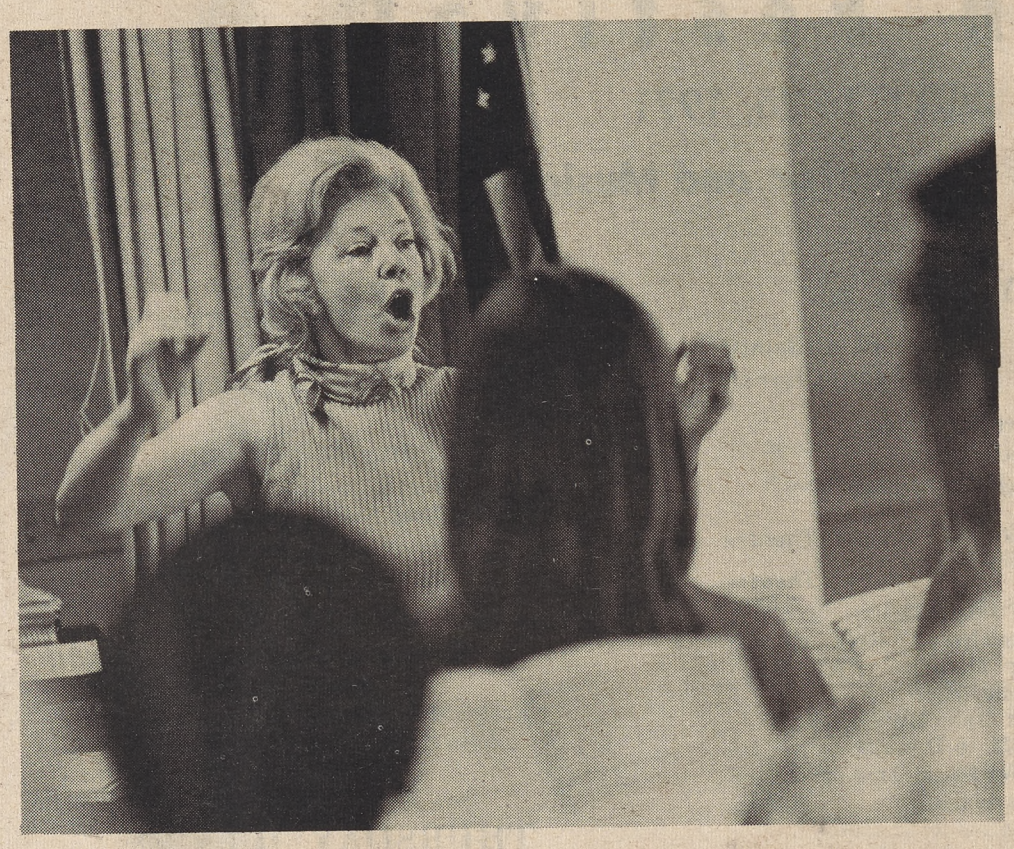
Priscilla Salgo observes 13th year as Festival Chorale director

Priscilla Salgo is much more than the gracious wife of the Carmel Bach Festival's distinguished musical director, Sandor Salgo. She will observe her 13th year as Director of the Festival Chorale this year and in addition to preparing the group of "hand-picked" singers, she has been serving as Director of the two week Carmel Bach Festival-Lyceum Summer Choral Day Camp.



PRISCILLA SALGO, Choral Director for the Carmel Bach Festival, instructed Carmel Bach Festival-Lyceum Summer Vocal Camp students during the two-week youth program.

Under her supervision two members of the Festival Chorale served as clinicians in instructing 21 young people between the ages of 12 and 18. Her inspiring leadership resulted in remarkable progress as evidenced at the ensemble demonstration held at the conclusion of the combined instrumental and choral camps.

Mrs. Salgo received her degrees of Bachelor and Master of Music from Westminster Choir College in Princeton, New Jersey where she was a faculty member for five years. She studied choral conducting with John Finley Williamson and George Krueger, orchestral conducting with Sandor Salgo and Wolfgang Stresemann, and Baroque music with Gustave Reese, Putnam Aldrich and George Houle.

Preparation of the Festival Chorale begins early in the spring when Mrs. Salgo travels to Los Angeles to conduct rehearsals of the Southern California group of professional singers and also rehearses the northern group in Palo Alto, where she makes her home on the Stanford campus with her husband and seventeen year old daughter.

ROSEMARY WALLER

Rosemary Waller to serve again as concertmistress

Rosemary Waller, who for six years, not all consecutive, has served in the responsible capacity as concertmaster of the Carmel Bach Festival Orchestra, will return this year to the benefit of the orchestra and admiration of hundreds of her admirers. She has just completed her third season as Principal Second Violin of the Cincinnati Symphony of which she has been a member for several years.

A six-time winner of the Coleman Chamber Music Contest, Miss Waller holds a B.A. and M.A. from the University of Southern California and was the recipient of a Fulbright Scholarship for study at the Paris Conservatory 1954-56. Upon returning to the United States that year she joined the National Symphony Orchestra in Washington, D.C. and in 1960 was invited to become a member of the Cincinnati Symphony.

In 1956 her talents became known to Maestro Sandor Salgo and he asked her to participate in the Carmel Bach Festival Orchestra. Her qualities of leadership and unusual ability have endeared Miss Waller to her colleagues and audiences so it will be a warm welcome she receives when she is heard as assisting artist on opening night, July 16, in Johann Christian Bach's "Sinfonia Concertante." That program will be repeated on Friday, July 23.

to review 'Bach to Stravinsky' Special Youth Concert July 20

A rare opportunity awaits young people of the Monterey Peninsula on Tuesday, July 20 when the Carmel Bach Festival will present a special concert for youth, "Bach to Stravinsky for Young Listeners."

The hour-long program will begin at 3 p.m. in Sunset Theatre and will be conducted by Festival musical director, Sandor Salgo, who will also comment on the music programmed.

The Festival Orchestra and Chorale will be heard in highlights of the 34th Festival which will open July 16 and run through July 25.

Festival soloists Ako Ito and Henry Dorigny, classical guitarists, will be featured in the second and third movements of Vivaldi's Concerto for Two Guitars in G major. The Festival Orchestra will perform Canzone for Three Brass Choirs by Gabrieli, Concerto for String Orchestra by Igor Stravinsky, and the second and fourth movements from Hyadn's Symphony No. 96, "The Miracle." The Festival Chorale will join the orchestra in Johann Sebastian Bach's Motet, "Singet dem Herrn."

Young people from 10 to 21 will be welcome to attend this special program; an adult must be accompanied by a young listener to be admitted. Tickets are 50 cents and seats are unreserved. They may be purchased at the Carmel Bach Festival box-office, Room 11, Sunset Cultural Center, San Carlos and Ninth in Carmel, or at the Sunset Theatre box office an hour before the performance.

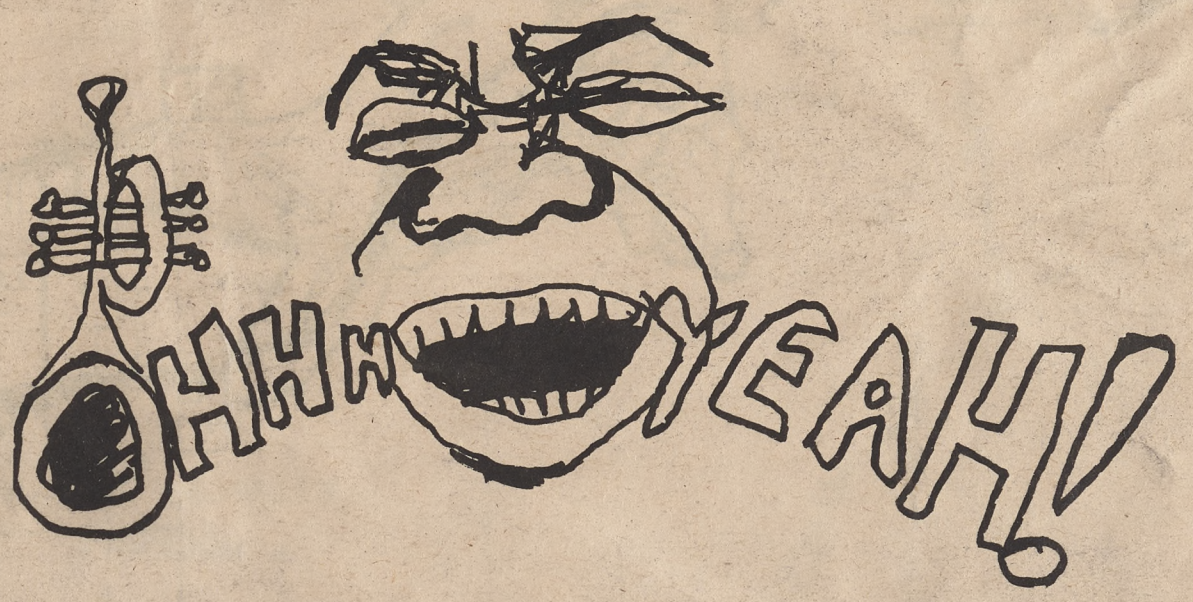
Al Parker's tribute to Louis Armstrong

Al Parker, dean of American illustrators, grew up in a Victorian frame house in Clayton, Missouri, a suburb of St. Louis. At 15 he started playing the saxaphone, and a year later was leading his own band on riverboats churning up and down the Mississippi. He shared an interest, and an era, with Louis Armstrong. As a jazz devotee, he followed Armstrong's career through the years, and last week, at his Rancho Road home, wrote this tribute to him.



A TRIBUTE TO LOUIS ARMSTRONG

BY AL PARKER

The first time I heard Louis I did not know who he was. His horn was carrying loud and clear over the Mississippi River from the dance floor of the river-boat steamer Dixie Belle. He was one of twelve musicians working with Fate Marable's Jazz-E-Saz Band.

I was aboard the Str. Capital with Mom and my kid brother, Edward. These boats were passing in the river. That morning Mom had packed a huge basket with goodies, three cushions (the seats were hard) and a pair of grandpa's binoculars, and loaded us on a trolley heading toward the river. The trolley line ended about four blocks from the levee.

Facing the sun, we walked downhill past the warehouses and their coffee and spice smells onto the cobblestone levee, where Mom hobbled on high heels to the boat's gangplank with it's welcome bouncey feel. She was brought up on the Father of Waters and so were Edward and I.

But this trip was to be something special for me alone. We shared a table with strangers and their baskets, strangers at first, but by the excursion's end, the entire boat was one happy family. We were in the middle of our meal, canned salmon sandwiches, cold cuts and the ever present potato salad, when I sighted the Dixie Belle. The band on the Capital had been playing the Tin Pan Alley tunes of the day, "Shiek of Araby," "Avalon" etc.

Now over the water came a new sound -- the blues -- I was green about the blues, jazz and Louis. I ran to the railing all ears as did half the passengers. Through grandpa's binoculars I was face to face with people waving at us. (You always waved to one another on the river). Fate's band sounded great, but that cornet was the driving sound that turned me on. Louis had young lungs and a young steel lip! The Dixie Belle was headed home down river for New Orleans. St. Louis, Missouri was only a stop on her 2000 mile cruise.

A year later Mom read in the Waterways Journal that the Belle was returning on another cruise, THIS time I was ready. I phoned Charlie, my drummer friend, who had a Model "T" Ford sans fenders and painted white -- a bathtub on wheels! We parked on the levee, boarded the Belle and had the time of our lives. Louis in person! Right in front of us!

The second time I heard Louis was in a phonograph booth, one of four side by side across the back of a furniture store, hidden from view by the bedroom department. I almost lived my youth in those secluded booths, with their electric fans, windup Victrolas and shelves stacked with new releases. One could play the record of his choice before purchasing, unlike the plastic sealed albums of today. These visits were very instructive free music lessons. My jazz collection was blossoming into quite a library, thanks to my Dad, who owned the store.

One record stood out from all the rest, King Oliver's Jazz band playing "Mable's Dream" on a Paramount label on which Louis played a slide whistle or "Frisco whistle" they were sometimes called. Our family was always on the move, (I actually attended seven grammar schools) and it was on one of these moves that "Mable's Dream" was broken in half. Most unfortunate, for today it would have been a collector's item. I still have most of my record library tucked away in a closet, however those gems of Louis' save one or two, are worn bare. On another one of those moves I lost my new "Frisco whistle". It was just as well, for Louis had something I didn't have.

The third time I heard Louis was at Carl Stacy's house. He was a small delicate youth who could play almost any instrument. While lightweight to look at he was a heavy weight to hear. I admired him and also his fabulous record collection. The personnel of bands was rarely listed on the record labels in those days but Carl knew who they were. His contacts in the jazz underground proved handy indeed. Among the "race" records (race meant performed by blacks) he played for me that day was Maggie Jones singing "Anybody Here A Want To Try My Cabbage?" Carl pointed out that she was accompanied by Louis on cornet and Fletcher Henderson on piano.

Then he proceeded to play a recording of the Red Onion Jazz Babies', again with Louis on cornet. Louis was our idol. He could rise above his material, those strange titles and melodies were eclipsed by his performance. I left Carl's house that day really elated. He had an extra copy of Louis playing "Muggles" which he gave to me. (Incidently marijuana was nicknamed muggles in those days).

I was part of a small dance band called the Parbanks Orchestra, having joined forces with a good friend and drummer, Charlie Eubanks. The band's name was a combination of our surnames. We were playing on the riverboat "Golden Eagle". A great way to spend our vacation from school, and it was truly a vacation with pay.

The sound on my saxophone was patterned after Louis, his staccato on the high notes, his wavering vibratto. It was beginning to pay off, for our band received ten encores on "Ida" the first night out. Louis was my guiding star.

On radio out of Chicago I could hear Earl "Fatha" Hines, his right hand on the piano reflected Louis' attack.

Louis' influence was felt everywhere, everywhere, that is, except by grandpa, a riverman for forty years, Captain Charles J. Bender. He took a dim view of jazz, especially riverboat musicians. "Utter nonsense" he said. "It's the life of loose ladies, liquor and lousey pay." I hadn't encountered any of this, but then again I wasn't a retired riverboat captain (his experience, by the way, must have been interesting to obtain).

I accepted grandpa's generous offer of a year's tuition to the art school at Washington University in St. Louis, then limited my life to a landlubbers existence, playing for country clubs and Polish weddings.

At art school Louis suddenly slipped from first place. A cute student with blonde hair and hazel eyes named Evelyn was no one to vie with. She was a jazz buff with a record collection of her own and she could bake a fabulous cake. Life looked up.

But Carl was to die suddenly, never to know of his idol's climb to fame. Somehow my participation in jazz began to wane. My art career was taking over, an area in which I was much more creative. I still hear from Charlie, who is a successful businessman in Texas, playing Saturday nights at his country club as a hobby with kicks.

The last time I heard Louis was the night after he left in his sleep for the final gig. Evelyn and I wanted to see and hear him once more.

Our youngest son Kit projected for us an old movie film short starring Louis. Hollywood never knew how to present him -- or any other jazz musician for that matter. He appeared in a dream sequence almost hidden by a million bubbles, white fuzzy festoons, mock waterfalls and dressed in a ludicrous leopard and leather costume, laughing and singing "Shine" -- about pearly teeth and curly hair, while clutching a trumpet and a white handkerchief.

This pretty well sums up today's image of the man. Although everyone admits he was the United States' Good Will Ambassador to the World, few have the true image, for one must know what preceded him to appreciate the inventiveness he brought to jazz. Dizzy knows, Miles knows, all the musicians know of the pacesetting innovations from this dedicated giant of a man. I've watched and listened to the King of Jazz for fifty years. I know that happiness is Louis.

BOB WOOD REPORTS. . .

A REGULAR COLUMN BY BOB WOOD, ASSEMBLYMAN - 34TH DISTRICT

I was amazed the other day to learn that our American pharmaceutical firms produce 3 billion doses of amphetamines annually. Some of these are commonly known to our teenagers as bennies or pep pills. This figure is three times larger than that which is warranted or needed for legitimate medical use in the United States according to testimony provided to a federal investigation committee.

I can't help but wonder what real good it's going to do us to continue to clamp down on the small time pusher who is attempting to pedal pills to our teenagers and others when the producers are allowed to produce as many as they wish. We apparently have no laws to allow the Attorney General to set production and export quotas of dangerous drugs.

Some authorities believe that up to fifty percent of these various types of drugs that are produced eventually find their way into the black market. It is admitted a large portion of the total production is exported to foreign countries where drug control is sometimes lax or non-existent. The federal narcotic agents have reported that a good percentage of these drugs destined for and delivered in Mexico, somehow find their way back across the border into Southern California. I don't doubt that many of them work their way right back here to Monterey County.

Last year California Legislators tried to pass laws to monitor the flow of legal drug shipments in order to prevent diversion. We have this year a bill before us that requires triplicate prescription provisions in an attempt to govern the sale of legitimate drugs sold by prescription. However, let's face it, the problem is essentially a national one. For what good is it going to do us to try to curtail drugs if neighboring states do not have the same laws. I think we all realize it's a national problem requiring federal control.

Before Congress today is a bill that would give the U.S. Attorney General the power to set production and export quotas of all dangerous drugs produced in the United States by pharmaceutical firms. I urge you to write your Congressman and Senators in support of this vital measure. Why don't you go to your desk right now and send a post card or short note to him if you feel this cause is a worthy one?

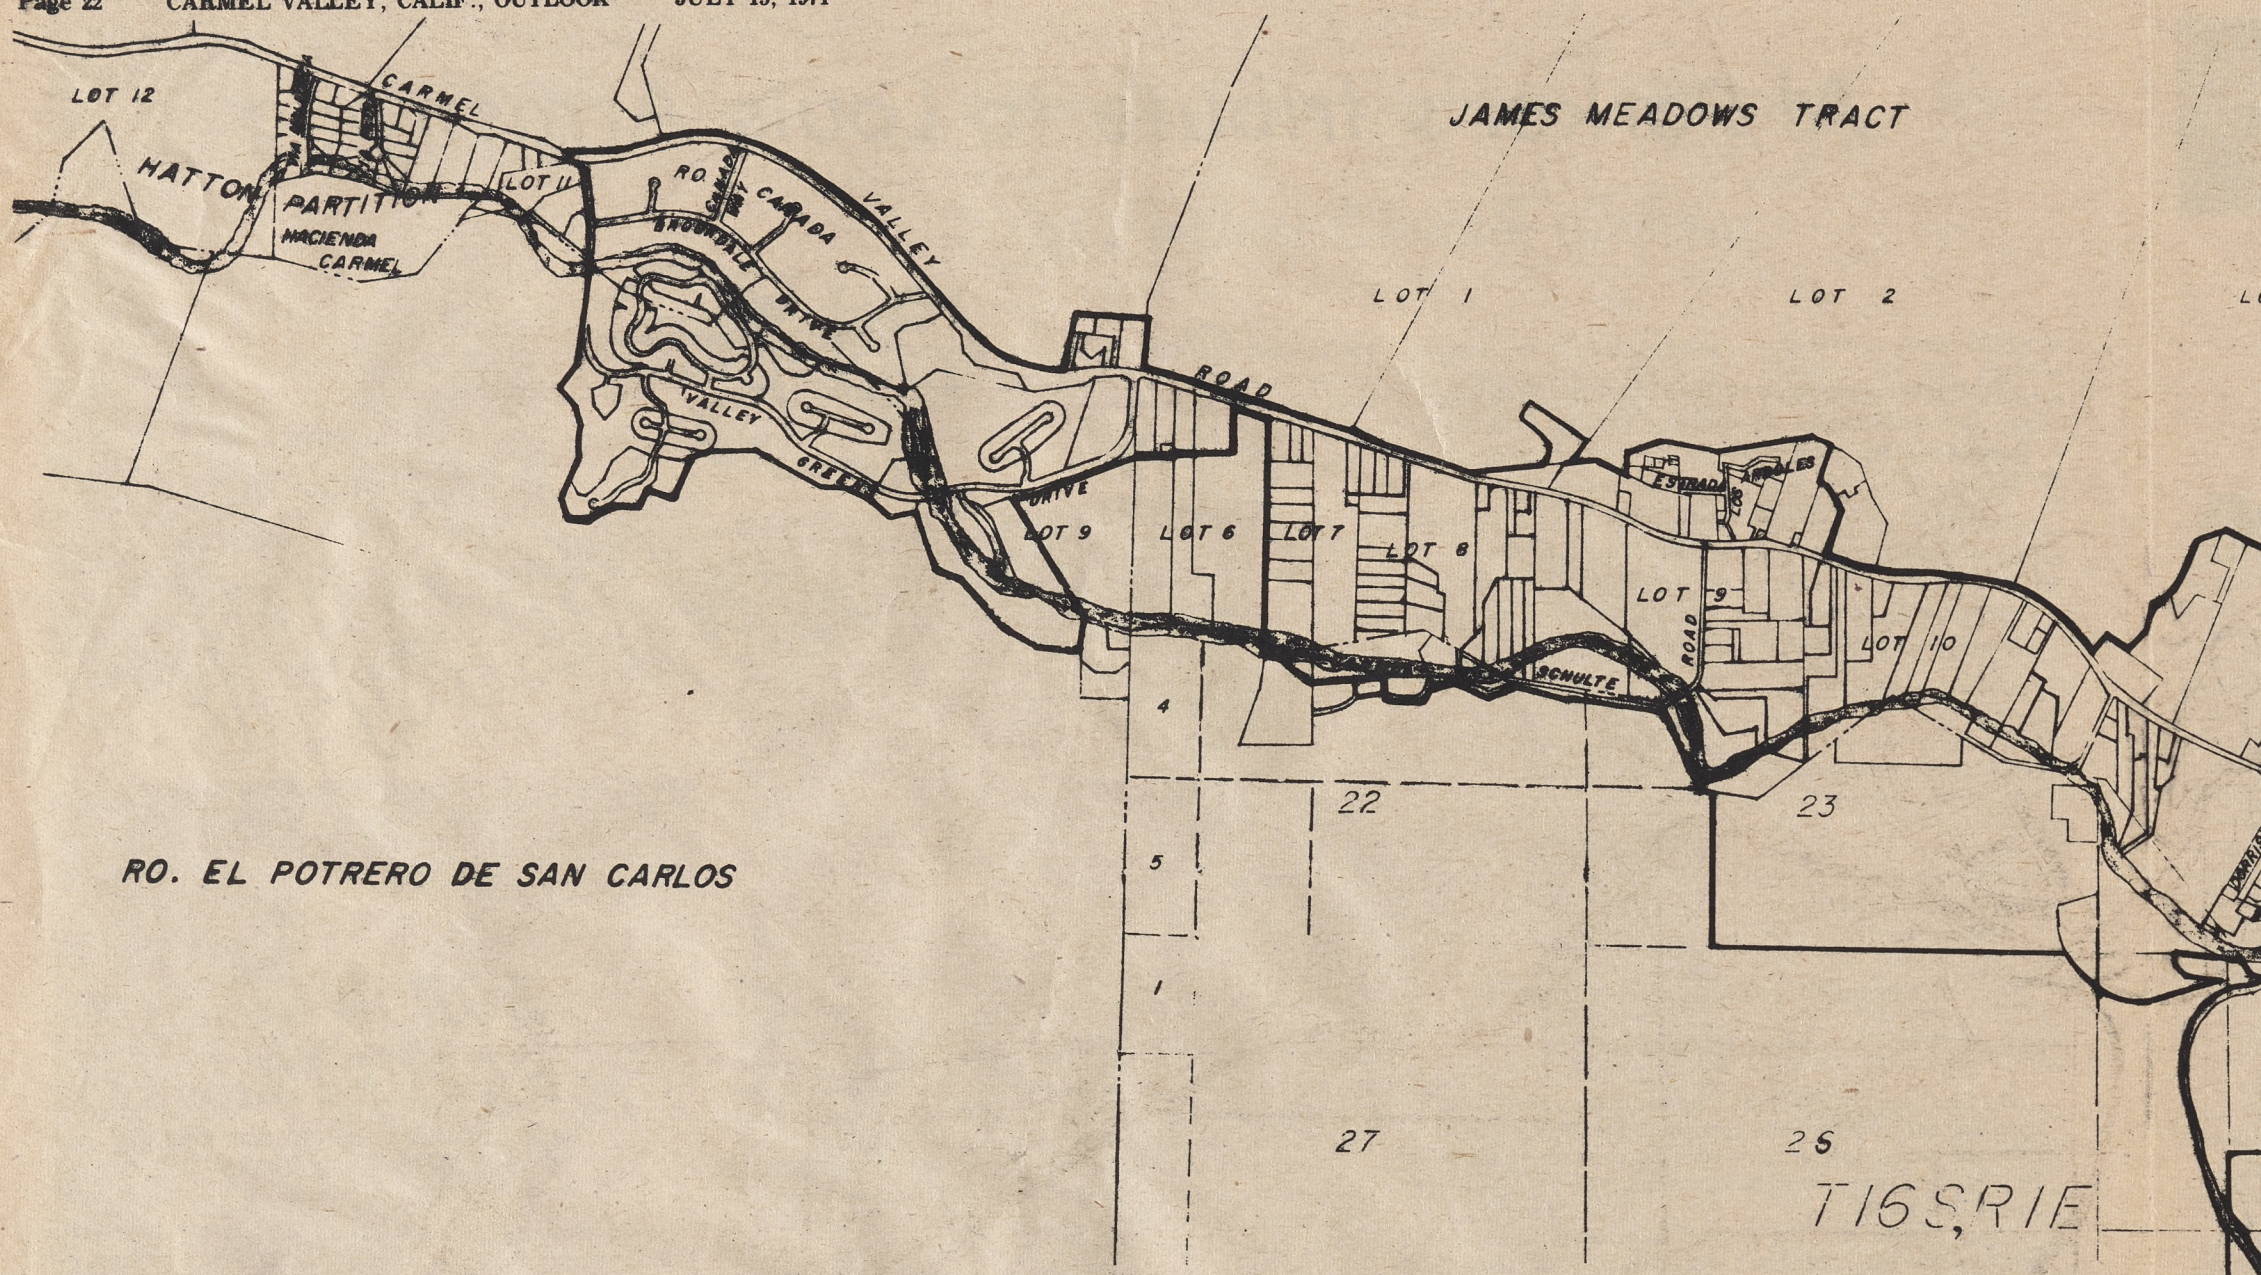
P.S. — I thought we had problems here in Sacramento until I heard about John Burke's problem in upper Carmel Valley. It seems John went out to get in his car on one of our recent warm days only to find a rattlesnake sitting where John normally sits. He immediately slammed the door shut and returned to his house to get a weapon to do away with Mr. Snake, but when he returned and opened the door and prepared to tackle the problem -- no snake! He couldn't find any snake and he couldn't find any tracks where the snake had ever left the car. As of this writing, John still doesn't know if the snake is up under the dashboard, in the upholstery, the heater or just where he is located. This set of events could make bicycle supporters and true conservationists out of John's entire family. It proves the old saying -- "There's no ill wind that doesn't blow some good". After all here's a rattlesnake that could be contributing to cleaner air by taking one automobile completely out or circulation (at least temporarily).



Area which must provide its own fire protection

THE AREA OUTLINED ON THIS MAP is being suggested for inclusion in a County Service Area or district for fire protection. The proposed fire service area begins at the San Carlos Ranch Road on the west and extends to the boundary of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District at Rancho Fiesta Road on the east. Generally it includes residential and commerical property, and leaves out several large parcels of undeveloped land at the request of the owners. This map will be presented for discussion and revision at a meeting called by the Ad Hoc Committee for Fire Protection on Monday at 8 p.m. at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

Branson emphasizes urgency of Mid

'Free ride' days are over . . . area must beg

By PAT GRIFFITH

Supervisor Willard Branson told residents of the mid-Valley Friday that they will first have to provide their own fire protection before they can hope to consolidate with other existing fire districts.

"Consolidation of existing fire districts is way out into the future sometime," Branson said. "Right now we have critical problems we have to take care of...we have to get something going right now for the mid-Valley."

This sense of urgency was underlined by Supervisor Loren Smith, County Counsel William Stoffers and Road Commissioner Bruce McClain, who is the administrator for County service areas.

All stressed that mid-Valley residents must move as quickly as possible to present a proposal to the Board of Supervisors if they hope to be covered by any fire station when the County's contract with the State Division of Forestry ends next June 30.

"The time for starting something is like yesterday," Stoffers declared, explaining that legal work establishing a fire district or service area must be completed by December 31 in order to get on the tax rolls for January 1972.

"The wheels of government turn slowly," he said, and residents must follow a prescribed process that involves preparation of a map showing metes and bounds of the area covered and hearings before the Local Agency Formation Commission and the Board of Supervisors.

Smith said that residents of the Aguajito and Jocelyn Canyon areas of Monterey are annexing to County Service Area 39, which at present has only fire plugs, to provide fire protection starting next July.

"When this is accomplished," he said, "we feel we will be ready to talk to any other district that wants to consolidate.

"We'll be happy to help the mid-Valley in any way we can," he continued. "But we should remember, no matter what we do, we will never get adequate fire protection because we can't spend that much money...to have completely adequate protection for structural and brush fires would cost a fortune."

CONSOLIDATION CONFUSION

Questions about possible consolidation of fire districts right now were raised because of articles and an editorial in Friday's Monterey Herald, which recommended this approach as the only logical one for the mid-Valley and said the meeting called by Branson was to discuss this possibility.

In response, Branson turned to a large map of his supervisorial district on which all present fire protection districts and service areas were outlined.

Noting the large areas, such as mid-Valley, which are not in fire districts, he said: "When we can bring the various service areas and districts up to a comparable level or service, when everyone has something to offer, then, I think, we could talk about consolidation.

"That isn't the case now. But eventually, when everyone is covered by comparable service, it would make a lot of sense, and would save everyone some money."

This point of view was strongly seconded by spokesmen from both County Service Area 43, lying to the west of the potentially unprotected mid-Valley, and the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District to the east.

In both cases, it was pointed out, property owners within those areas have paid taxes for several years to buy equipment and pay for crews, and are not now inclined to increase their operating costs to take in an area that has enjoyed a "free ride" for fire protection at the expense of all county taxpayers.

"Let them build up some equity themselves and have something to offer us, and then we'll be glad to talk about consolidation" was the reaction from either direction.

STATE ASSISTANCE

Also offering assistance at Friday's meeting was Richard Bawcom, chief forest ranger for this area, who said that the State Division of Forestry would be willing to provide personnel, on a contract basis, to man a fire station in the mid-Valley and operate its equipment. The service area would have to pay for the station, trucks and other equipment and salaries.

In a similar statement to the general membership meeting of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association Thursday night, Bawcom estimated it would cost a mid-Valley service area "in excess of $100,000" in annual salaries for the number of men (four on duty at all times) required by the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau.

But by contracting with the State, he said, the new service area would save some costs for administration and truck maintenance, since these expenses would be split on a pro-rata basis with County Service Areas 42 and 43, which also have contracts with the State.

The viewpoint of the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau on insurance rates was explained to the CVPOA members by John Barr, a supervising engineer from San Francisco.

Barr said that homes in the mid-Valley are receiving an increase in insurance rates from Class 7 to Class 10 (unprotected) because they are not within five miles of a fire station and, in most cases, do not have workable hydrants

Costs and details to be outline

The hard questions about the cost of fire protection for mid-Carmel Valley will be discussed at a meeting Monday evening at 8 p.m. at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

Action taken at this public meeting is expected to lead directly to the formation of a County Service Area by the end of the year.

The Ad Hoc Committee for Fire Protection for the mid-Carmel Valley has prepared the above map, showing the area to be included in a prospective service area or fire district. In rough terms, it extends from Rancho Fiesta Road on the east to the San Carlos Ranch Road on the west, encompassing most of the residential and commerical properties along Carmel Valley Road, but excluding several large parcels of undeveloped land.

It is this area which will be without any formal fire protection starting next June 30, when the County ends its contract with the State Dvision of Forestry. Although the within 1000 feet. On a $40,000 house, this means an increase in premiums, on the average, of $112 a year.

Mid-Valley fire protection problem

...st begin 'paying its own way' immediately

He said insurance companies took a beating in the severe fires in Southern California last year, when scores of homes in brush areas, which had been given a Class 7 rating, were burned to the ground.

ABUSE OF INSURANCE

He said that no homes in dry brush areas had ever been officially entitled to a Class 7 rating, and added that the widespread use of Class 7 ratings for homes in the mid-Valley "was the kind of abuse that is the reason (the bureau) did away with it.

"You've been getting a reduction in rates all along when you shouldn't have," he declared.

Barr said that if mid-Valley residents refused to form any type of fire district or service area, their rates could go even higher than Class 10.

While some insurance companies would probably refuse to write any policies under such circumstances, he said, a homeowner "could probably find a company that would insure it with a substantial surcharge on top of the Class 10 rate."

Since banks require fire insurance before approving any home mortgage, there would be tremendous pressure on the homeowner to pay whatever rate was asked. And, of course, he would have no fire protection in return.

However, as realtor Nancy Strathmeyer commented, "it is wrong to look at fire protection in terms of insurance rates. In human terms, you can't put a dollar value on the loss of a house...the loss of your children's pictures or old family pictures or whatever."

...e outlined at meeting Monday

State Division of Forestry might continue to provide nominal protection for homes through the fire season, until Nov. 15, even that limited coverage is in doubt.

A study now being reviewed by the State Forestry Department in Sacramento recommends that the floor of Carmel Valley up to Rancho Fiesta Road be eliminated from the department's coverage, because the land has become well-developed and is no longer considered a watershed area.

Monday night's meeting will be the third in the last two weeks dealing with the whys and wherefores of fire protection for the mid-Valley.

Ad Hoc committee chairman Bill Brown has requested that anyone circulating petitions supporting formation of a service area bring them to the meeting. These petitions will be turned over to the Board of Supervisors next week, with the hope of getting the board to call a public hearing in August.

CHAIRMAN OF THE AD HOC Committee for Fire Protection for Mid-Carmel Valley, Bill Brown, rises at Friday's meeting to announce the meeting his group will hold July 19 to form a service area for fire protection. Seated next to Brown is realtor Skip Marquard.

Petpourri

Chickens? As pets?

Well, maybe not exactly pets -- in the cat-dog-canary sense of the word -- so let's consider them a hobby-interest.

As with just about everything else, there are chickens and there are chickens; and there are different ways to raise them, as well as a variety of reasons for keeping them.

Most people think of chickens as dim-witted birds designed as efficient egg-laying machines, or as neatly packaged fryer parts in the supermarket meat counter. In both these roles, they are useful birds, although rather uninteresting.

Anyone interested in egg production or fried chicken is more interested in chicken ranching than chicken-keeping. For these purposes, there are certain breeds of chickens that faithfully produce an egg a day, or a juicy, succulent leg and thigh.

Under the chicken-keeping heading, however, poultry somehow becomes dissociated from the dinner table -- except as a conversational medium. After all, you don't eat your pets . . .

With due respect to White Leghorns, Plymouth Rocks and Rhode Island Reds -- all excellent breeds of poultry for egg and meat production -- they do not especially interest us as hobby birds.

The Bantam, however, in its infinite variations, is quite another story, and it is with Bantams that most people first get involved in chicken-keeping.

For one thing, Bantams are smaller, quicker and more graceful than their larger cousins. And they have been graced with plumage that makes them attractive and decorative. Banties come in red, green, gold, black, grey, white, brown and all combinations thereof. Thus, it is possible to have a red-combed rooster with a golden crest, red wings, a blackish body and irridescent green cascading tail feathers. Put him alongside a little gold-and-black hen, or a white one with bronze specks, and they make quite an attractive pair to have around.

How you have them depends on your surroundings and your inclinations.

Poultry raising has become a scientific venture, as has so much of animal husbandry. It involves at the very least a chicken house, securely fenced, with roosting perches, laying boxes, feeders and waterers.

Bantam keeping usually involves a plot of land and a nearby tree, a bucket of clean water, hand-scattwred grain and freedom.

Because these birds are home-loving and not inclined to roam, once they have been made to feel at home, they stay. Left to their own natural devices, they will roost in any tree that catches their fancy, cuddling down in a fork with much fluttering and muttering at dusk, and shattering the dawn with their heralding good-morning cries.

Of course, permitting any chicken to run loose has its risks: there are owls and hawks and opossums, snakes and dogs and skunks that occasionally fancy a chicken dinner. But we feel that these natural risks are worth having the birds free to roam and scratch about. Banties are infinitely more interesting when they have things to do and places to go, than when they spend their lives in a 10 x 10 foot coop.

Although roosters crow, we feel that anyone considering keeping chickens should have one. Not only are they more colorful, but they are faithful and proprietary birds, taking care of their hens, herding them to safety, and defending them, when necessary.

Banties seem capable of developing ties; one rooster and one hen become a "couple", and stay together, eating and sleeping as a pair. Often, the rooster will perch nearby if the hen begins to sit on a next of eggs, and will keep her company through the three long weeks until the chicks hatch.

Because we moved recently, we packed up all our Banties and took them to a new location. But, for a while, we couldn't catch our old rooster and one young hen. This hen was not "his" special hen, but with the abasnce of the others, he began to adopt her.

Over and over again we saw the rooster bring food to her, drop it in front of her and cluck to her to eat. She began to follow him about, as his old special hen had.

When we finally caught this pair and moved them, too, the other chickens in our flock had dispersed on the new property. We hadn't seen them for two days when we brought in the old rooster.

It didn't take him more than a few hours to locate the missing birds and lead them proudly back to their new home. Now, he herds them about and won't permit them to leave the grounds.

Because most people scatter hen scratch about for their Banties, the birds are fairly tame and come when called. They also have a way of coming inside when the door is open and taking polite tours of your home.

When a young hen begins to lay eggs, you can provide a few small cartons lined with hay in sheltered places. Bantam eggs, although small, are rich and tasty. Leave one or two for the hen to return to and "steal" any additions for your kitchen.

An added plus of having a small flock of Banties about the grounds is that they are voracious insect-eaters. They will take care of snails, slugs, earwigs, spiders, tomato beetles and just about anything else that you'd like to rid your garden of, without harming the plants. Highly recommended by organic gardeners are a pair of Banties.

Val Verde development gets green light

Planners grant use permit, exempt access road requirement

BY PAT GRIFFITH

Arbor Development Company finally got its use permit yesterday to put up 45 homes on Val Verde Drive, but not before one final, bitter uproar over access to the development.

The fireworks came after the Planning Commission unanimously approved the use permit, subject to certain conditions specified by the subdivision subcommittee and the County Road Department.

Among the conditions attached was one spelled out by Road Commissioner Bruce McClain to require developer Thomas Gamboa to provide primary access to "Casas de Carmel" via either Rio Road or Carmel Rancho Blvd. McClain said this was necessary because of the difficult traffic pattern along Carmel Valley Road in that area.

He added that County Counsel William Stoffers said that the development cannot be denied access to Carmel Valley. Road completely because it has substantial frontage on it.

When McClain first explained this condition, number 13 on the list, there were no comments from commissioners or the developer. And just before the vote on the use permit was taken, Planning Director Ed DeMars asked if everyone understood that the use permit did have the 13 conditions attached. There were nods of agreement with no questions asked.

With that, the use permit was approved, and a second motion passed delaying a vote on design approval to Aug. 11.

Gamboa and his entourage left, for a few moments unaware that there was any limitation on their right to use Carmel Valley Road for the development's sole access.

However, attorney George Walker, representing Gamboa, returned to ask for a clarification on condition 13, throwing the commission into a state of total confusion.

Chairman Edward Marcucci said he didn't think the commission had approved any requirement for another access route. When assured by De Mars and McClain that such action had indeed been included with the use permit, Marcucci protested:

"I don't think the commission would have voted for it if they had realized . . . It would sterilize the whole project. We could just as well have denied it."

Commissioner Leon Stutzman interjected that he had understood about the condition on access, but Commissioner Vaughn Parsons of Carmel Valley said he didn't think this should be required of the developer at this time.

Parsons said that he would like to see the County condemn a strip of property along Val Verde Drive to open access to Rio Road, and if that happened, he would be happy to see Carmel Valley Road closed off.

Walter agreed that this would "make sense if it were ever possible to complete the Riverwood tie-in to Val Verde."

UNFAIR TO GAMBOA

In the meantime, he argued, it would be unfair to require Gamboa to improve Val Verde Drive all the way to Rio Road or to acquire access through property he doesn't own to Carmel Rancho Blvd.

"That would really kill the subdivision," he contended.

McClain suggested that Gamboa work out an agreement with the county, whereby the County would agree to exercise its right of condemnation to adquire the necessary property for a road provided Gamboa would pay for the road improvements.

Or, McClain continued, the improvements could be paid for through an assessment district in the area, with all property owners who would benefit from the improved road sharing in its cost.

"I'm concerned about the traffic from 45 units making a U-turn on Carmel Valley Road," McClain said.

Commissioner Keith Evans of Carmel said that while he is also concerned about traffic conditions on Carmel Valley Road, he doubts that other property owners along Val Verde Drive would want to have all traffic funneled south past their homes.

Walker responded it would be "beyond fairness" to require formation of an assessment district, since that would take the support of 60 percent of the property owners in the area.

Carmel Realtor Enos Fouratt, one of the owners of the property being developed, told the commission it would be "ridiculous to close Val Verde Drive at any time . . . Val Verde Drive has been the entrance to Carmel Valley Road for 20 years."

At that point Marcucci asked if it would be possible to set a time limit within which the developer would be required to provide another access route.

McClain said this could be done if the commission limited the number of units that could be occupied until a second road was provided.

"When you've got a planned unit development you can't put a loan on it until it is 80 percent sold out," Gamboa said in rebuttal. "Furthermore," he continued, "to go on down Val Verde would be the same situation as I've had on Meadows Road . . . people simply will not dedicate that portion of their land . . . that happened to me on Meadows Road."

Evans then said that he agreed with Gamboa that an assessment district would never work, "and that the only way would be for the County to step in, and the County is not about to do it."

And with that, the commission voted to delete condition No. 13 from the use permit.

Even before this last-minute hassle, the commission had heard from several persons concerned about the traffic problems along the lower end of Carmel Valley Road.

LETTER OF PROTEST

A letter from Mrs. William A. Sanford was read protesting that school children already cross a dangerous divided highway that will become even more crowded with the addition of cars from the Val Verde development.

Mike Brown of Carmel told the commission that it was "asking for problems" in approving the development without limiting access to Carmel Valley Road.

On the other hand, Robert Crovello of Rancho Rio Vista, praised the commissioners for their consideration of the project "that will be an asset to the entire Carmel Valley."

Noting that there are presently horses pastured along Val Verde, Crovello said : "I've been kicked by one and bit by another." He maintained that the development would help to reduce the speed limit along Carmel Valley Road.

Commissioners spent a few minutes discussing design with Redwood City architect Omer Baltan, who had described the homes in great detail at a previous meeting.

Baltan said the development would have stucco exterior walls with three styles of shake roofs, and would present a "park-like setting" from the beginning because large trees would be planted throughout the development.

In response to a question from Stutzman asking if more variety might be provided by using varying colors or materials, Baltan said that he felt the off-white walls would be more aesthetically pleasing.

"If you vary the colors too much you get a tutti-frutti look," he answered.

Parsons dismissed the concern about appearance, saying that he doubted the developer "would come up with something that will not be pleasing and charming.

"I'm not sure I want to be an arbiter of taste," he explained.

Marcucci said he felt it "requires a great deal of naievete to say to a developer to go along and do what you think is best."

During the brief adjournment in the hearing, before the confusion over the final condition on the use permit erupted, Gamboa declined to answer any questions about when he would start construction.

"I'm not going to say nothing about nothing," he snapped. "Go away. I've had it."

Carmel school board grants 6% cost-of-living pay boost

Following a 2-2 deadlock on granting teachers and classified employees a five percent cost-of-living raise last night, the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education voted unanimously in approving a six percent raise.

The fifth member of the board, Mrs. Pamela Smith, did not attend the meeting, being on vacation in Europe.

On the first vote, board president James Brock and Trustee Dr. Charles Snorf voted against the five percent raise, preferring instead that teachers and classified employees be given a six percent cost-of-living salary adjustment.

Brock argued for the higher figure, saying that since the assessed valuation of the district came in higher than previously estimated, making it possible to grant the larger raise. He said the district should do so "because in the future we may not be able to."

"I have a feeling we should keep up with the cost of living," Snorf said, "I think that's something we shouldn't be cheap on.

"If the cost of living has gone up by six percent, I don't think the place to stop inflation is in education and the teaching of our children," Snorf said.

Because the teachers predicated the raise on the cost-of-living increase of last year, "One year late," Superintendent Harris Taylor recommended the board grant the larger figure. "If you're talking about the current cost-of-living increase," he said, "that might be something else."

Trustee Richard Wilsdon, who with Trustee James Miller had voted for the five percent, told Snorf to make a motion to approve the six percent figure and "I'll vote for it."

In June the board had tentatively agreed to grant a five percent raise contingent upon the district being able to maintain its present funding capability. The district had feared the passage of a statewide tax.

When the tax did not become reality, the Certified Employees Council asked the board to consider a six percent increase contingent upon an increase in the district's assessed valuation.

District Business Manager Walter Hinton told the board that the added one percent would not affect the tax rate although the district would have to dip into its reserves. However, he said the increased assessed valuation will bring the district an additional $34,000.

Before the voting, Wilsdon said that the statewide tax could be adopted in a year or two and he was afraid of the district "being locked into a higher salary schedule" which is already "relatively high compared to other districts in the state."

Carver Baldwin, pointing to County employees taking a 2.8 percent raise when they had requested five, and the County supervisors voting against giving themselves a raise, asked the district to do its part in fighting "the galloping inflation in this country," by voting just a five percent increase.

Howard Byrne, a Carmel High School teacher, asked Baldwin, of Carmel, if he would ask telephone company employees and people in industry to take lesser raises to fight inflation. Baldwin said he would.

Byrne said that he has been a teacher for 26 years and that teachers are always a year behind in receiving cost-of-living adjustments compared to other professionals "and we are asked to curb inflation."

He said "public employees have been what I guess is called dedicated servants for years, and this dedication is what has cost us."

Baldwin pointed out that there are people in Carmel living on fixed incomes who are having to sell their homes and asked, "Are we considering some poeple, or are we considering all people?"

Although the classified employees did not request the six percent increase, it is district policy to make such increases apply to both certificated and classified employees.

Funds sought for extra reading teacher

The Carmel Unified School District Board of Education last night authorized the administration to apply for Elementary Secondary Education Act Title I funds which would be used to hire an additional reading teacher at Tularcitos School for the 1972-73 school year.

The district will receive $16,678 from ESEA for the 1972 fiscal year, $7,465 more than it did for fiscal 1971.

In order to receive the money, the district must have a "target" school, the district school with the most aid-to-dependent children, which Superintendent Harris Taylor said, "happens to be Tularcitos."

The district's agent for the funds will be the Pacific Grove Unified School District.

"I don't know how they dream up these agents," Taylor said.

The board also voted to pay dues of $727 to the California School Boards Association and thus remain a member of the association.

Richard Wilsdon was nominated as a candidate for the association's delegate assembly for Region 9, Sub-region 9c.

Robert Oross of Carmel Valley questioned the district's being a member of the association, citing the association's support of a statewide school tax which would have hurt the district financially.

Wilsdon replied that the association has "sponsored a great deal of legislation favorable to this school district."

"We do get a lot of other benefits from the association," Trustee James Miller said, adding that the district, by remaining a member of the association, at least "has a voice on it."

Seven new teachers hired for Carmel school district

The resignation of one teacher was accepted and seven new teachers were hired at last night's Carmel Unified School District Board of Education meeting.

The resignation came from Mrs. Sandra Jordan, Spanish teacher at Carmel Middle School and who took a leave of absence during the past school year.

Teachers hired were:

—Gordon L. Campbell of San Bernardino. Campbell, who recieved his B.A. at Occidental College and his teaching credential at the University of Redlands, will teach mathematics at Middle School.

—Jack M. McGuire of Monterey. He will teach social studies and biology at Carmel High School. McGuire earned his B.A. at the University of Iowa and did graduate study at Iowa State University.

—Louise Tanous of Carmel. Mrs. Tanous, who will teach social studies at the high school, received her B.A. at the University of Colorado and her M.A. in anthropology from the University of California, Davis.

—Marcia Green of San Jose. Miss Green, who will be a girl's counselor at the high school, has an A.A. from Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., a B.A. from the University of Missouri, and an M.S. in psychology and counseling from San Jose State College.

—Barbara Gibson of Santa Cruz. Mrs. Gibson will be an elementary intern teacher at River School for next school year only as a teacher under the University of California, Santa Cruz Internship Program. She received her B.A. from UCSC.

—Elodie Macondray of Santa Cruz. Miss Macondray will be a half-time teacher at River School for one year only under the UCSC intern program. She also received her B.A. at UCSC.

The board also approved the re-employment of Mrs. Alys Bliesner as a half-time learning disabilities teacher at River School.

'Hot pack' lunches ready to roll

Except for Captain Cooper School in Big Sur, every school in the Carmel Unified School District will have the "hot pack" Class A lunch program this coming school year.

The program was approved last night by the board of education.

Instituted last year at Carmelo and Woods schools, the program consists of food that is packaged in compact aluminum trays which are carried in specially designed hot and cold food carriers.

In the past, Tularcitos and River Schools have had cafeteria service. At Carmel High School and Carmel Middle School, the diet has been limited to hot dogs, hamburgers and French fries.

"We have some youngsters who eat a hamburger every afternoon, 180 days a year," Superintendent Harris Taylor told the board.

Taylor said a lot of students make their own lunches in the morning, and that the inadequate diets "affect our educational program."

He said, "if offered a good, hot lunch, a lot of the kids can consume a lot of food."

Taylor reported that the program received an enthusiastic response at Carmelo, consistently exceeding 50 percent participation. At Woods, he said, the program started slowly because students were used to the conventional cafeteria method serving but that by April the percentage of participation had increased to 53 percent, higher than the State average.

The program has not only paid its way, he reported, but also paid for new equipment and while offsetting loss at Tularcitos School and Carmel High School.

The price of the "hot pack" meals will be 35 cents at the elementary levels, 40 cents at Middle School and the high school. The difference in charges is to offset the larger portions.

Middle School and High School students will still be able to buy hamburgers and hot dogs.

Taylor said that parents might guide their children toward the hot meals.

School tax rate held at $2.72

. . . unless statewide school tax is adopted

Trustees of the Carmel School District last night adopted a publication budget of $4,227,478 for the 1971-72 school year which will hold the tax rate at its present level of $2.72.

The budget includes a 6 percent cost of living increase for teachers, and classified employees, and is $34,576 higher than the tentative budget approved in June.

Business manager Walter Hinton explained that the district will absorb the additional cost because of a 3.6 percent increase in assessed valuation. The County Assessor had originally predicted the district would receive only a 2.7 tercent increase.

A public hearing and adoption of the final budget will take place at a special board meeting on Monday, August 2, in Brey Hall of Carmel High School.

Superintendent of Schools Harris Taylor said the average daily attendance is expected to stay close to this year's estimated total of 3213, which includes the adult school and elementary summer school attendance.

However, he said the district expects to see a continuing shift in numbers away from the elementary grades to the Middle School and high school.

Taylor said that in the past the district has planned on an average of 225 to 230 students in each elementary grade, but is predicting an enrollment of only 180 kindergartners in September.

FEWER YOUNGER STUDENTS

"As the price of property goes up from the average of $46,000 shown on the multiple listing board, so does the age of the occupants go up, and as their age goes up, it means more youngsters in high school and fewer at the elementary level," he explained. "But the final number stays the same."

The publication budget includes an undistributed reserve of $306,583 and a general reserve of $10,000. The general reserve category is being established to build up an insurance reserve, to enable the school district to obtain better insurance bids and stand a better chance of not having policies cancelled or altered.

The breakdown by categories shows these projected expenditures: Administration, $140,137; Instruction, $2,534,121; Health Services, $29,682; Transportation, $159,348; Operation of Plant, $288,164; Maintenance of Plant, $144,127; Fixed charges, $309,668; Food Services, $3,648; Community Services, $82,637; Capital Outlay, $199,968; Debt Service, $9,718; Outgoing Transfers, $9,277.

STATE SUPPORT

The entire budget hinges on the critical assumption that the Carmel District will continue to get minimum state support of $125 per pupil, or an estimated total of $401,625.

If a statewide school tax of $3.75 now under consideration in the State Legislature is passed, the Carmel district's income would be cut drastically although property taxes within the district would be raised $1.03. If that happened, the entire budget would be subject to drastic revision.

Hinton noted that included under the category of "fixed charges" in the proposed budget is the first of 10 annual payments of $1000 to the Carmel Sanitary District for annexing Carmel Middle School to the sewer system. The school board in 1966 agreed to pay a total annexation fee of $10,000.

In addition to the fee for Middle School, the school district is paying a monthly surcharge of $130 to the sanitary district for Carmel High School, and is in the process of negotiating lower rates for Woods and River Schools.

Sometime in the future the district will face a $130 a month surcharge on Middle School's water bill for the same service.

Hinton commented that from a financial point of view it is a "shame" that Middle School must annex to the sewer line, since its present septic tank system "is functioning beautifully."

During the budget discussion, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oross of Carmel Valley questioned an additional $1,900 for salaries for bus drivers above the 1970-71 budget.

When told that this would be necessary because of an extra number of bus runs to get children from the upper Valley to Middle School, the Oross' suggested that the board consider putting the sixth grade back in Tularcitos School to save money.

Board members responded that the decision to move the sixth grade to Middle School was made for educational reasons, and that the additional cost for transportation was considered a secondary factor.

Brock heads Carmel board of education

The Rev. James W. Brock was elected president of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education at last night's annual organizational meeting of the board.

Brock, rector of St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church in Carmel Valley, was nominated by outgoing president Richard Wilsdon, and was elected unanimously.

Brock was appointed to the board in 1968 to fill the unexpired term of Dr. Robert Newton. He was elected to a four-year term to the board the following year.

James Miller, elected to the board in 1969, was elected clerk, succeeding Brock.

The meeting was the first for Dr. Charles Snorf as a trustee. The other new board member, Pamela Smith, is on vacation in Europe and missed the meeting.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Smith was chosen as the board's representative to the County Committee and County School Boards Association by Brock when Snorf said, "I thought we should nominate Mrs. Smith, but she isn't here," and Wilsdon replied, "I guess that's fair."

Brock appointed Wilsdon the district's legislative representative.

EMERGENCY CALLS

The critical fire danger posed by dry grass and brush was underscored on Sunday when 2½ acres of grass burned behind the home of Arthur Lee Hall in La Rancheria. Fire Chief Chip Collins said the fire is believed to have been caused by children playing with matches, and has asked all Carmel Valley parents to make sure their children do not have access to matches.

The Carmel Valley fire department also assisted with several medical calls last week.

Saturday afternoon Don Lewis of 8 Esquiline Road was treated at the station for a possible dislocated knee and referred to a local doctor. A short time later, the first aid crew was called to the home of Mrs. Alden Brooks at 28 Rancho Road. She was treated at the scene.

Two visitors from Sunland, Calif., Peter J. Serraino and Peter Malvin Carlson, were brought into the Stirrup Cup in the Village following an automobile accident on upper Carmel Valley Road. They were transported to Community Hospital for treatment of injuries.

On Tuesday at 8 p.m., Norman Geis of 22 Flight Road was taken to Community Hospital as a medical emergency. And Wednesday at 11:08 p.m., Georgiana Demerest of 2895 Ribera Rd., Carmel was treated for knee injuries suffered when she lost control of her car on Carmel Valley Road east of Country Club Drive. She did not require hospitalization.

School board may allow open questions

The Carmel school board agreed last night to consider adopting a new policy to allow open questions and discussion from anyone in the audience for a specified period of time at every board meeting.

The suggestion was made by Carvel Baldwin of Carmel, who said the practice is followed by the Carmel and Monterey city councils and the Monterey board of education.

"I think anyone who lives in the area and pays taxes should have this privilege," Baldwin said. "It's part of the democratic process."

Under present board policy, anyone who wishes to discuss a matter with the board must submit his request in writing to the superintendent of schools. If the superintendent and the board agree to consider the request, the matter is placed on the agenda for a formal hearing.

Baldwin said that in the past he has wanted to discuss issues with the board but has not been able to. Specifically, he said, the board had denied a request for a public hearing on the ABC (A Better Chance) program.

Trustee Richard Wilsdon disagreed, saying that the board had scheduled a discussion of the ABC program on its regular agenda, and that the board had had nothing to do with a public meeting held the next night to explain the ABC program to the community.

The idea of an open discussion period was endorsed by Dr. Charles Snorf, who said "it might increase communication and get more people in attendance."

Trustee James Miller said he would have no objection "if it could be laid out in a fair situation and no one person could monopolize the time."

Board chairman James Brock said he felt the established policy had worked well, and that there could be problems with individuals wanting to discuss personnel matters.

At the suggestion of Miller, the board agreed to set the matter for a hearing at a future meeting.

Broad curriculum OK'd for schools

"It's really an extensive and complete program," Trustee James Miller said last night of next school year's Carmel High School course of study which was approved by the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education.

The course of study includes some 100 academic classes, 10 vocational courses, plus a varied physical education program.

For a school of 1,000 students, Superintendent Harris Taylor said of the course of study, "it has quite a variety."

Over the last five years, Taylor said, "We've not only strengthened the academic program by adding those courses in those areas, we've also added vocational courses."

Taylor added that a year of United States history is required in a student's high school career, a subject that has caused some controversy in past meetings.

One vocational course was added this year—office management practice—which Taylor said is designed to prepare girls for employment.

Among the courses to be offered: marine biology oceanography; agriculture; trigonometry and analysis; modern math; consumer math - consumer education; film production; commercial art; work experience education (where the student receives school credit for work outside the classroom or school); fire science; architectural drawing; auto mechanics; English 15 AB (Shakespeare).

In addition, there are the many classes in English, foreign languages, industrial arts, social studies, biology, chemistry, mathematics, art and music.

AN APPLICATION TO REZONE this 25-acre parcel fronting on Carmel Valley Road at the foot of Laureles Grade from five-acre to one-acre building sites will be considered by the County Planning Commission on July 28. The property has been owned since 1954 by Roy Kaminske, former president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association. Kaminske has no plans for developing his property at the present time. Photo by George T.C. Smith

Kaminske to seek rezoning of 25 acres

Roy Kaminske will have an application before the County Planning Commission on July 28 asking for rezoning of his 25 acres on Carmel Valley Road to KGJB4, or one-acre minimum building sites.

Kaminske's property, located next to River Ranch, is across from the Carmel Valley Inn. At present it, like all of the former S.F.B. Morse Ranch, is zoned KGJB5, with a five-acre minimum.

Kaminske said Monday that in asking for rezoning, he has no immediate plans for subdividing his property and developing it.

As land values have risen, Kaninske said, it is becoming more difficult to sell a five-acre parcel to someone who will use it just for a single family home. Kaminske said he would worry that if he did sell off five or 10 acres, the new owner would promptly four-by-four the land and the property would be spoiled by a completely uncontrolled development.

On the other hand, Kaminske said, if he does have a one-acre minimum, he could perhaps apply for ST (special treatment) zoning sometime in the future, and cluster homes on the rear of the property, away from Carmel Valley Road.

"At least I'd have a crack at trying to preserve the natural beauty," he said.

Kaminske said that when he bought the property in 1954, prior to the implementation of the Carmel Valley Master Plan, it was slated for eventual commercial use.

At that time, he said, he requested that it be zoned for agricultural use. They did farm the property until 1960, and later leased part of it for a boarding stable.

HABER'S PLANS

Kaminske's nearest neighbor, Ed Haber, told the Outlook that he has no present plans to ask for rezoning of his 28-acre parcel from its present five-acre minimum. Haber received a use permit last month to board horses and sell feed on his property, formerly part of the Morse Ranch.

"Obviously we have the boarding stable so we can hold the land," said Haber, developer of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

"I'm not at all interested in having any big subdivision. Maybe I'd like to have a two or two-and-a-half acre minimum in the future, but one acre—no."

Haber said that future development of River Ranch would likely be "horse-oriented," making use of existing barns and some of the open pasture.

GARLAND BUYS MORE LAND

Meanwhile, the Outlook has learned that William Garland of Pasadena has purchased a substantial chunk of choice hillside property behind the old Morse ranch from Dr. and Mrs. Dudley Sanford.

Garland purchased most of the Morse property last year, installing a fence along the shoulder of Carmel Valley Road and clearing out underbrush in a broad area on the south side of the Carmel River.

His new purchase is estimated to include somewhere around 400 acres, including a broad meadow half-way up the hillside that is a favorite destination for Valley horseback riders.

This would give him something over 500 acres altogether in property circling behind and above both Haber and Kaminske.

Garland could not be reached for comment on what plans, if any, he has for developing this property. The acreage he purchased from the Morse estate is zoned for five-acre building sites. The rest of the land is KGJB4, permitting one-acre homesites.
